BEEF TRUST HAS COMBINE, BUT NO STATE MONOPOLY

Commissioner Dillon Reports His Findings in Suit Instituted in 1911 by Major as Attorney-General to the Supreme Court, but Makes No Recommendations.

AGENTS' BUYING AND SELLING PRICES FIXED

Twenty Volumes of Evidence Are Turned Over to the Court With Statement That Specific Testimony on Control Is Lacking.

POST-DISPATCH BUREAU, JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18.—That the big Chicago packers, Swift & Co., Armour & Co., Morris & Co., and the National Packing Co. were in an agreement to limit and destroy competition for the purpose of fixing and maintaining the prices to be paid for livestock and the prices of fresh meat and other packing-house products to the public was the finding of Special Commissioner Daniel Dillon, filed in the Supreme Court today in the Major quo warranto suit against the packers.

Commissioner Dillon found, however, that while the business controlled by this combination of packers was very large and that the combination was very formidable, the evidence is not sufficiently specific in regard to the volume of business it controlled and the volume of business done by others to warrant a finding that the combination constituted a monopoly.

The Missouri suit was directed particularly against the Hammond Packing Co. of St. Joseph and the St. Louis Dressed Beef Co., the two Missouri corporations controlled by the National Packing Co. The Attorney-General, in his attack upon the packers' trust, sought to oust the two Missouri corporations.

No recommendation was made as to the course to be pursued in dealing with the packers. With his report of findings of fact, Commissioner Dillon turned over to the Supreme Court 20 volumes of testimony taken in the case.

Completed Report in Hospital.

The quo warranto suit against the packers was filed by Elliot W. Major in December, 1911. He was then Attorney-General. Dillon was appointed by the Supreme Court to take the evidence in the case and report to the Court. He completed writing his report in St. John's Hospital in St. Louis, where he is confined with a broken leg. He sent the report to Jefferson City by an assistant.

Since the suit was filed the National Packing Co., named as one of the defendants, has been dissolved. It was incorporated by a combination of the Swift, Armour and Morris interests, capitalized for $15,000,000, and all of its stock held by the representatives of these three packing houses.

The National Packing Co. held all the stock of Swift & Co., Armour & Co., and Morris & Co., and acquired other packing plants. The National Packing Co. was organized after the packers had tried to form a $60,000,000 combination in 1902, but failed because New York brokers failed to carry out an agreement to raise that sum of money. Of the stock of the National, 70,047 shares were held by Gustavus Swift; 60,157 by J. Ogden Armour, and 19,783 by Edward Morris.

Among the corporations purchased by the National were the St. Louis Dressed Beef Co., the Hammond companies, the Omaha, Hutchinson, Anglo-American, Fowler and United Packing companies and several refrigerator car lines.

Officers Fixed the Prices.

Commissioner Dillon found that beginning immediately after the organization of the National Packing Co., its officers held regular weekly meetings in its office in Chicago and determined the price at which meats should be sold and the number and quality of cattle to be purchased and the price to be paid. These prices governed in Missouri, as well as other states in which the company was licensed to do business, according to the Commissioner's report.

"From the evidence we find," says Commissioner Dillon in his report, "that the National Packing Co. owned the capital stock and properties of respondents and said other companies, and its entire capital stock of $15,000,000 owned by Swift, Armour and Morris in certain proportions.

"What followed after this is what naturally would be expected: Swift, Armour and Morris elected the entire board of directors of the National Packing Co., and this board was composed of these three gentlemen themselves and others, who were officers and employes of Swift & Co., Armour & Co., and Morris & Co., and this board of directors, of course, controlled the National Packing Co."

How Prices Were Made.

The evidence shows that reports were sent to the office of the National Packing Co. from all its subsidiary companies and from its branch houses and consignees all over the country, by private wire and otherwise, and that among these reports were received statements of the prices at which Swift & Co., Armour & Co. and Morris & Co. were selling their fresh meats in New York City, Boston and other points, these statements being received by the agents

PASSENGERS LASHED TO SHIP, WOMEN DROWNED

Believed Death List on the Veronese Will Reach 80, Rescue Attempts Made.

OPORTO, Portugal, Jan. 18.—Bodies of women and babies from the wrecked steamer Veronese, which was driven on the rocks seven miles north of here in a gale Thursday, were thrown up by the sea early this morning.

The ship is going to pieces and unless the survivors can be taken off quickly it is feared all will be lost who were not rescued yesterday.

It is believed the death list now numbers 80.

The life line from the shore to the ship, which had held for 36 hours and over which passengers were taken to safety in life buoys, broke last night.

A new cable was stretched after heroic swimming among the breakers. Two longshoremen lost their lives in their attempt to reach the steamer with a life line.

Twenty-four persons who were unable to hold themselves on the ship longer were lashed to the rigging.

In addition to the 139 pasengers on the boat, there was a crew of 60.

PLANS TO ICE ORCHARD TO PREVENT BLOOMING

Maryland Man Has Novel Plan to Save 6000 Trees From the Frost.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—W. F. Thomas of this city owns an orchard of 6000 young apple trees in Maryland. The unseasonably warm weather has coaxed out the buds, and there is danger of blooming. In case of frost the trees will be injured.

Thomas consulted experts of the Department of Agriculture, and on their advice today shipped 100 tons of ice to the orchard. The ice will be broken up and applied to the roots of the trees in the hope of chilling them, thus preventing the sap from rising and thereby keeping them from blooming.

TRIES TO ESCAPE BY DUMB-WAITER SHAFT—IS STUCK

Comedy "Thrill Scene" Developed by Thomas Kehoe, a Patient at City Hospital.

WAS DODGING POLICE

Attempted to Ride Dumb-Waiter From Fifth Floor and "Big Rescue" Then Follows.

Thomas Kehoe, 45 years old, of 1421 Biddle street, a patient in the observation ward at the city hospital, having to choose between a cell in a police station and an absolutely dark and almost airtight dumb-waiter shaft, chose the shaft Friday evening.

He attempted to ride the dumb waiter from the fifth floor of the city hospital to the basement, Friday afternoon. He made about half of the trip without difficulty, but an unexpected stopover deprived him of light and air for nearly half an hour.

Kehoe was received at the hospital Jan. 11, when he continually shouted, "They're after me! They're after me!"

This was literally true, for the police had been bothering Kehoe very much, hardly giving him time to practice his profession as a laborer, according to their own admissions. They were holding him at Central District Station on a charge of petty larceny when he began complaining that he was sick. He was sent to the hospital in the belief he was suffering from hallucinations.

In a short time the attendants in the observation ward reported that Kehoe, as long as he thought he was being watched by a physician or a nurse, would persist in declaring, "They're after me!" But when he thought he was no longer under such surveillance, would stroll about at ease, talking to other patients in the ward.

The physicans determined to their own satisfaction, Friday, afternoon, that nobody but the police was "after" Kehoe, so they informed him that he would soon be sent back to police headquarters.

A short time later Kehoe mysteriously disappeared, and while a search was being made for him, high and low, what the attendants described as "a terrible rumpus" was heard coming from the lower part of the dumb waiter shaft. Investigation showed that Kehoe's frantic but muffled yells for help were the "rumpus." He was stuck in the shaft between the second and third floors.

James Brannigan, a fireman stationed at the hospital, was called in and tried to get Kehoe out. His efforts from either end of the shaft were fruitless, and Kehoe, who had used up most of his air supply in yelling, was in a sorry plight.

The dumb waiter is used principally for carrying food. It runs in a shaft about two feet square and therefore offers very limited accommodations to passengers. It is operated automatically and is so arranged that when a door of the shaft is open on any floor, the carriage stops instantly wherever it may be. While Kehoe was making his descent, somebody opened a door and the carriage stuck in one of the darkest and most stifling sections of the shaft.

After Brannigan had given up, Mike Higgins, chief attendant in the observation ward, managed to set the mechanism of the dumb waiter in operation and Kehoe was lifted to the fifth floor again. He was greatly agitated, but he had nothing to say—nothing! Not even when he was loaded into the "wagon" and taken back to Central Station.

DOGS BITE A BOY AND A GIRL; OWNER OF 1 ANIMAL HELD

Man Refuses to Tell Where Vicious Brute Is After Child Is Seriously Hurt.

POLICE PUSHING CRUSADE

Several Owners Summoned to Police Court in Campaign Against Unmuzzled Pets.

The police campaign against unmuzzled dogs caused several dog owners to be summoned to police court Saturday. The fight will be continued vigorously, Chief Young said, until careless owners of vicious dogs have been taught to keep the animals tied up or muzzled. The police are acting under an order issued a few days ago by the Board of Health to check the alarming spread of rabies.

Frank Krueger of 1421 North Tenth street, a laborer employed by the Sewer Department, was arrested Friday evening after his dog had bitten Charles Daelo, 10-year-old son of Joseph Daelo of 1321 North Fourteenth street.

Boy's Injuries Serious.

The boy was bitten on the right leg as he walked past Krueger's premises. He was sent to the city dispensary for treatment and the physicians there found his wounds so serious that they forwarded him to the city hospital.

When Patrolman Moran went to Krueger's home to investigate the incident, the dog had disappeared and Krueger, according to Moran, said he had given the animal to a negro. Moran insisted that he be told where the dog could be found and Krueger's answer, he said, was "find out for yourself." Moran then took Krueger to the Carr Street Station.

Long questioning there failed to get the desired information from Krueger. He said he knew where the dog was, but would not tell, according to the police. He was then locked up on a charge of keeping a vicious dog.

Rosie Cooper, daughter of Mrs. Mary Cooper of 4114 Blaine avenue, was attacked at Blaine avenue and Thurman boulevard by a dog owned by James Donnellan of 4178 Folsom avenue. She was bitten on the left cheek and on one of her lips. The wounds were treated by Dr. W. K. Chase of 3900 Park avenue.

A "liver-and-white" hunting dog, which appeared to be rabid, was shot by Patrolman Austin J. Moore of the Newstead Avenue Station, on a vacant lot at 4067 Westminster place. The dog had neither collar nor muzzle and was foaming at the mouth and displaying other symptoms of hydrophobia. Moore killed it after trying to find the owner. The dog had frightened many persons, but Moore believes it did not bite anybody. Its head was sent to the city bacteriologist for examination.

Complains of Vicious Dog.

A. J. Bauer, a letter carrier of 2122 Nebraska avenue, complains, in a letter to the Post-Dispatch, that a vicious dog is being kept by the family of a doctor, but does not give the family's address.

Bauer writes that the dog bit him in seven places when he was delivering mail at the doctor's home one day last July, and that it has made two other attempts to bite him, the last being only a few days ago. He says that after he was bitten by the dog he complained to the police and they reported later that the dog had been taken away. Bauer writes, however, that the dog which rushed at him one day this week is the same one that bit him.

After the dog's second attempt to bite him, about a month ago, he again reported to the police, but the doctor's family, he writes, denied that the dog was there. They also complained, he says, that the postal service to their home was unsatisfactory.

Says Others Were Bitten.

Bauer says the dog has neither license nor muzzle. "This is the third vicious dog that has been harbored in that home during the last few years and others have been bitten by these dogs," he writes.

The following letter, commending the police for their crusade against unmuzzled dogs, was received by Chief Young from William P. Hahn of 3510A Hartford street:

"I wish to compliment you for your action with reference to muzzling dogs and hope that you will not let up until every dog is either muzzled or shot. I am sure you have the support of the better class of citizens in this matter.

"In my estimation there is nothing so terrible as a person having to die of hydrophobia. If the owners of dogs had the proper feeling for their fellow citizens they would not have to be driven to their duty in this respect. There should be a law imposing a fine of $500 on the owner of a dog that bites anyone."

BAIL FOR CASTRO REFUSED

Venezuelan Must Wait Until Nagel Acts on Appeal.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The freedom which Cipriano Castro desired to enjoy while the Department of Commerce and Labor was considering the question of his right to enter this country, was refused today. Federal Judge Holt decided that no action should be taken on the question of bail until Secretary Nagel has had a reasonable time to consider Castro's appeal from the action of the local immigration authorities who ordered Castro excluded.

If this appeal was denied, the court said, the application for bail and for writ of habeas corpus might be renewed.

WOMAN WHOM ELECTION HAS MADE THE NEW "FIRST LADY" OF FRANCE

M. and MME. RAYMOND POINCARE'

In the Social Life of the Republic President's Wife Is a Conspicuous Figure.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Society is much more interested in the wife of the new chief magistrate than it is in M. Poincare himself. Under the Constitution, the wife of the President has no title. She is a simple citoyenne, without official recognition. In actual fact she takes her place as "Mme. La Presidente."

In the eyes of the French people she is the mistress of the house of France and must combine feminine grace with democratic dignity at the receptions at the Eleysees Palace.

During the next two years no fewer than four royal sovereigns will visit Paris, to say nothing of lesser luminaries. Hence the importance of the position. During the 40 years of the Third Republic the unsuitability of the wives of certain presidential candidates has led to the rejection of their lords.

With the ever increasing influx of foreigners, especially Americans, the duties of the President's wife become more and more difficult, for entertainments are demanded in constant succession and powers of endurance become as important as charm, tact and other social qualities.

MRS. R. L. JOHNSTON OBTAINS DIVORCE; ALIMONY ARRANGED

Wife of Former Prosecutor Testifies He Was Habitually Drunk for Years.

Mrs. May G. Johnston was granted a divorce from Roland L. Johnston, former Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, by Judge McElhinney at Clayton Saturday.

Johnston did not resist his wife's suit. Mrs. Johnston testified that she and Johnston were married Sept. 18, 1895, and separated Nov. 14, 1910.

"What was the occasion of that separation?" asked Attorney Rowe.

"The cause was set forth in my petition," said Mrs. Johnston.

Asked as to how her husband treated her, Mrs. Johnston said that he showed no affection, that he was discourteous and that he seldom spoke to her. Sometimes, she said, he would remain away from home a week, leaving her without protection at their home, The Crags, at Fern Glen.

For years, she said, he was habitually drunk. Since their separation, she asserted, he had contributed only $5 a week to support her and their 14-year-old son, Lyle, whose custody she asks.

Mrs. Johnston testified that since Johnston's release from a sanitarium last summer she had permitted him to occupy separate apartments in their home, but there had been no reconciliation. At times, she said, he was kind to their boy, but at other times he neglected him.

When the question of alimony was raised, Rowe said arrangements were under way by which Johnston was to transfer to his wife the equity in the Fren Glen home and the 50 acres of land surrounding it.

Mrs. Edith Dougherty, a cousin, and Edwin W. Mills, former St. Louis County Prosecuting Attorney, testified as character witnesses for Mrs. Johnston.

PICTURE CAUSES HIS ARREST AFTER 13-YEAR ABSENCE

Rogues' Gallery Photo Brings Humiliation to Man Who Says He Is Reputable Toledo Citizen.

John Shea, superintendent of the police Bertillon system, showed the workings of his bureau to a delegation of Boy Scouts Friday night. In illustrating how the rogues' gallery is kept up he took from the files several pictures of men listed by the police. Among these was a photograph of Benjamin Haynes, alias Hands, alias Hines, alias James Ward, classed as a pickpocket.

The last Bertillon pictures of Hynes was made in St. Louis in 1900. After the Boy Scouts departed Shea left this photograph on his desk.

Detectives Hannigan and Heckel saw the picture on the desk and scanned it closely, so as to fix a mental image of the original.

Saturday morning Hannigan and Heckel were at Broadway and Market street, when they saw a man who closely resembled the picture taken 13 years ago, except that he wore no mustache. He was well dressed and dignified. When the detectives stopped him he was plainly annoyed.

"I am a well-know business man of Toledo, and you have no right to intercept me and question me as to my identity," he said.

They insisted that he go to police headquarters. When confronted there with the Bertillon photograph and another rogues' gallery picture made in Boston in 1899, he admitted his identity as Ben Haynes.

"I have been keeping a saloon in Toledo for years and have been living an honest life," he said. "The police are hounding me because I was once accused of a crime."

Though the records do not show that Haynes was ever convicted of a violation of the law a new rogues' gallery picture and new Bertillon measurements of him were made Saturday under Shea's direction.

There is nothing to show that he has committed a crime in St. Louis. He probably will be held on a police court charge of vagrancy and the police will ask that he be ordered to leave town.

GIRL RUNAWAY IN MAN'S ATTIRE IS KILLED AS THIEF

Missouri Farmer Overtakes Young Woman Near Neighbor's House, Their Voices Arouse Owner Who Shoots Both and Finds Body and Wounded Man at Daylight—Story Told at Coroner's Inquest.

By Associated Press.

NEVADA, Mo., Jan. 18.—As a result of what is believed to have been an attempt by Rose Duff, 20-year-old daughter of Jake Duff, a farmer, to run away from home in man's attire, Miss Duff was shot to death and her father dangerously wounded early today by Claude Beetle on the Beetle farm, 10 miles south of here.

According to Beetle's story at the Coroner's inquest in session this afternoon he fired at the pair under the impression that they were stealing corn from his crib and not knowing that one of them was a woman. Whether there will be an arrest depends upon the outcome of the inquest.

Duff, in his story to the Coroner's Jury, said he believed his daughter's mind deranged. She arose from bed early this morning he said and dressing in man's clothing left the house. He pursued her and finally found her hiding in the corn crib on the Beetle farm adjoining his.

He was endeavoring to get her to return home, he said, when Beetle ordered them away and they ran. The shooting followed.

According to Beetle's story, he went to his barn before daybreak to attend to a sick horse. He heard a noise in his corn crib and saw forms there. He ordered the two to leave, but in answer to his demand they threw corn at him. He said he returned to his house, got a shotgun and revolver, then went out and called to the pair to surrender.

They started to run and he fired one shot in the air to frighten them. They continued to run from him and he ordered them to stop. When they did not heed his summons, Beetle fired with his shotgun and then the revolver.

He said he did not know he had hit anyone until after daylight when he found the body of one person lying in the road. He then discovered he had shot a girl and sent word to the authorities.

Duff, whose wound is not believed to be fatal, was found further down the road.

Both Beetle and Duff are substantial farmers, well known in the community.

GIRL'S FIANCE DIED FROM POISON, OPEN VERDICT IN CASE

Whether Chemist Took Acid Accidentally or by Intent Not Found at Inquest.

An open verdict of death from hydrocyanic (prussic) acid poisoning was returned, Saturday, at the conclusion of an inquest in the case of Frederick Blaicher, a chemist, who was found dead, Wednesday, in a flat he and Miss Myrtle Lynn of 737A North Euclid avenue, were fitting up at 2244A Adelaide avenue in anticipation of their marriage. The wedding, according to Miss Lynn, was to have taken place Friday.

"Whether taken accidentally or by intent could not be ascertained," is the wording of the verdict, following the announcement that the poison caused Blaicher's death.

Miss Lynn, for whose testimony the inquest was continued Friday, was the principal witness at the concluding session. She appeared in mourning.

Had Bottles of Poison.

She testified that Blaicher apparently had been happy and that he recently had talked of hardly anything except their coming marriage. He had some chemicals at the Adelaide avenue flat, she said, and performed some interesting chemical experiments for her entertainment. He showed to her several bottles which he said contained deadly poisons, and told her she must never touch them, she testified. Miss Lynn controlled her voice with difficulty and wept as she was leaving the Coroner's office.

Mystery Unsolved.

The apparent mystery which developed when it was testified that Blaicher's body was found in the bedroom and the poison bottle in the bathroom of the flat, was not cleared up. Deputy Coroner Fath, who conducted the inquest, [illegible]ked Friday that, owing to the almost lightening-like rapidity with which hydrocyanic acid produces death, it seemed impossible that Blaicher could have reached the bedroom after taking the [illegible] in the bathroom.

Prussic acid is the swiftest and most deadly poison known to chemists. Its action is almost instantaneous and it sometimes happens that a person who has taken prussic acid will fall dead before he has time to set down the container from which the fluid was taken.

OHIO RISING AT CAIRO

River Expected to Go Above the Flood Stage.

CAIRO, Ill., Jan. 18.—The Ohio River here still is rising, and it seems certain that it will go above the flood stage, 45 feet. A slight rise in the Mississippi is pushing up the Ohio and today the gauge registered 44.5 feet.

While there is no prospect that the rise will affect Cairo, a vast farming country probably will be found [illegible].

ORRICK BISHOP'S BALLOT FOR GILL NOT IN THE BOX

Assistant Circuit Attorney Likely to Have Personal Interest in Prosecution.

The ballot cast at the November election by Assistant Circuit Attorney C. Orrick Bishop could not be found in the ballot boxes when they were opened to recount the vote of the Fifth Ward in the Gill-Dyer congressional election contest.

This fact was made known by Charles J. Maurer, attorney for Gill, Saturday. Immediately after the election Gill sent out letters to Democratic voters asking them how they had voted in the congressional contest. One of the replies received was from Bishop, who stated that he voted from the Missouri Athletic Club and that the number of his ballot was 56. He stated that he had voted for Gill.

When the ballot box used at the precinct where Bishop voted was opened no ballot 56 could be found, according to Maurer. The ballot apparently has been removed and another substituted for it.

Shortly after the election Circuit Attorney Thomas B. Harvey selected Bishop as [illegible] of his assistants. The Circuit Attorney is charged with the duty of prosecuting perpetrators of election frauds, and it may fall to the lot of Bishop to prosecute the election judges who tampered with his ballot, if they should be indicted.

Maurer also told a Post-Dispatch reporter that Dyer's name in the same handwriting appeared on more than 500 of the scratched ballots examined in a recount of the vote of the Fifth Ward.

A force of clerks was set to work Saturday to copy the name of every person whose ballot contained the name of Dyer in the uniform handwriting.

Maurer said he would call in these persons and ask them whether they had voted for Dyer or Gill to ascertain whether they had scratched the ballot themselves or authorized anybody else to do it for them. He said he would also have the ballots photographed.

Dyer lost 295 votes in a recount of the vote of the ward, not including the 500 ballots which Maurer said had been tampered with. Gill hopes to get evidence enough in this ward to give him the seat to which Dyer was elected on the face of the uncontested returns.

Woman's Pulsating Tumor on Brain Is Third Known.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18.—Miss Margaret O'Hearn, 40 years old, died in a hospital here following an operation for a pulsating tumor of the brain. Surgeons said that this is the third case of its kind on record.

Miss O'Hearn had been afflicted with the tumor two years.

FISHER CHARGED WITH COERCION IN OSAGE OIL FIGHT

House Committee Hears Indian Side of Fight on Secretary of Interior.

DECLARE HE AIDS TRUST

Ousted Tribal Councilmen Appeal to Courts to Re-Instate Them in Office.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Charges that Secretary Fisher attempted to coerce the Osage Indians into leasing valuable oil fields to the Standard Oil Co. and a counter charge by the Secretary that the Uncle Sam Oil Co. attempted to acquire the fields under circumstances which were threatening proceedings by Attorney-General Wickersham, were aired today before the House Committee on Indian Affairs.

Meanwhile seven Osages, members of the tribal council, who were removed from office Jan. 3, by Secretary Fisher because, he said, it was found they had been "unduly influenced" in making a lease to the Uncle Sam Oil Co., went to the District Supreme Court and got out a mandamus calling on the Secretary to show cause next Tuesday why they should not be reinstated.

Certain leases to the Uncle Sam Oil Co. have been thrown out by the Secretary and a bill is pending in the House to compel the Secretary to validate them.

Charges Fight to Standard.

Albert Wilson, representing the Uncle Sam Oil Co. in a brief, declared that the Standard Oil Co. is endeavoring to block the efforts of the Uncle Sam Oil Co. to secure this lease because the Uncle Sam Oil Co. could then become a competitor of the Standard Oil Co. subsidiaries in the field.

"But the Uncle Sam Oil Co.," he continued, "has been harassed by every device known to the Oil Trust and has met with the constant, persistent, unreasonable and unwarranted opposition of the Interior Department.

"The Secretary of the Interior, for the purpose of intimidating and coercing the Osage Indians into electing a new Council, which will obey his instructions, has published and caused to be published statements intimating that many of the Indians would be arrested or indicted upon some charge because they were in favor of the leases to the Uncle Sam Oil Co.

Officials Aid Oil Trust.

"The stockholders of the Uncle Sam Oil Co. have fought a long, hard fight against the machinations of the Oil Trust. The Oil Trust has had the advantage of having the assistance of a former President, Cabinet officers, the Postoffice Department, the Interior Department, some Federal Judges, a Federal District Attorney and many other lesser Federal officers, but the Uncle Sam stockholders have fought the fight to establish their company as a genuine independent oil company and actual bone fide competitor of the Oil Trust."

Secretary Fisher replied to the charges. He said:

"The negotiations for the so-called leases have been reported to the Department of Justice and an investigation is being made by the Attorney-General.

"I regard an attack from the Uncle Sam Oil Co. as a badge of honor," declared the Secretary. "It is conclusive recognition of the fact that I have effectively checked the attempt of this concern to acquire an immense oil field belonging to the Osage Indians under circumstances which have been investigated by a special agent of the Indian Office. As a result of this report I removed the entire tribal council and referred the report to the Attorney-General, who will take appropriate action just as soon as he can decide what the action should be."

Demands Small Lease Rights.

As to the charge that he had been aiding the Standard Oil Co. in trying to secure for that corporation Osage land leases Secretary Fisher declared the reverse was the case.

All pipe lines, he said, had been prohibited from bidding in the competition for these lands. Furthermore, the regulations provided that no company or person could obtain more than 25,000 acres, whereas the Uncle Sam Oil Co. wanted 200,000 acres and three individuals suposed to be affiliated, he said, with the company, had each applied for a like amount.

MAJOR PLANS ST. LOUIS ELECTION BOARD HEARING

Progressives and G. O. P. Will Have Chance to Present Arguments.

POST DISPATCH BUREAU, JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18.—Gov. Major announced today that on next Tuesday he will give a hearing to lawyers representing the Republicans and Progressives to determine the question of which party is entitled to representation upon the St. Louis Election Board. He says before making these appointments he wants to hear arguments from both sides. His mind is entirely open, he says, and after hearing legal arguments he will decide which party to recognize.

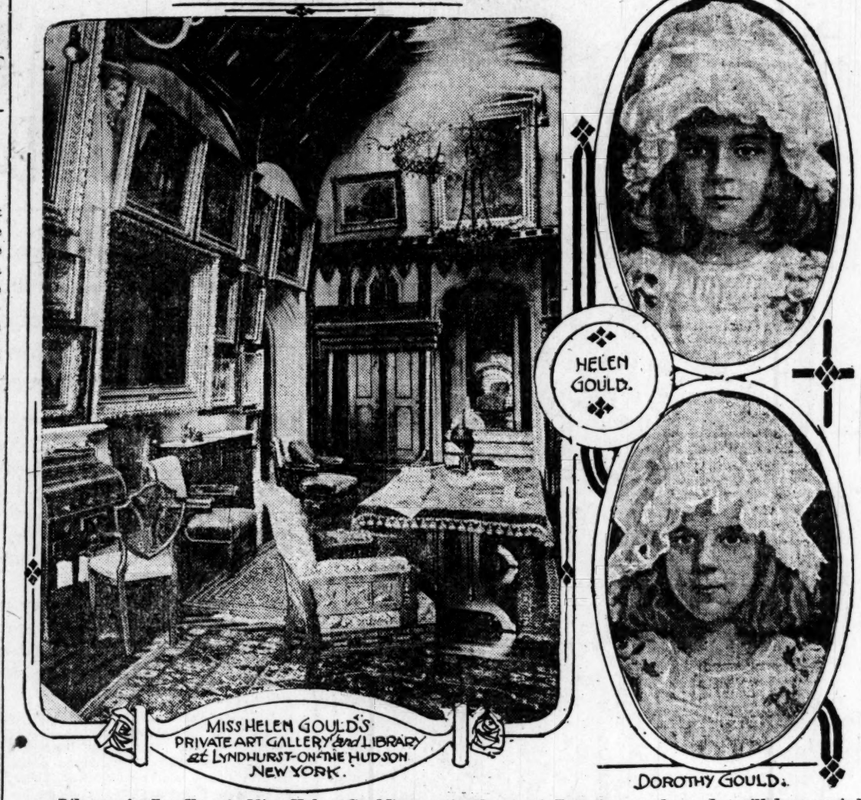

The Progressives have been insistent upon recognition, their claim being based upon the fact that the Roosevelt party ran second in the nation. The Republicans take the position that as second party in Missouri the statute could only apply to them.

The Governor has thoroughly made up his mind whom to appoint when he determines the question of which party is entitled to recognition.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

Marriage to Finley J. Shepard to Be on the Anniversary of Her Parents' Wedding.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Although she is one of the richest women in America, Helen Miller Gould will keep the expense of her wedding trousseau within $1000.

The latter figure was that set by Madeline Force, now the widow of Col. John Jacob Astor, when she was married and it was a shock to Fifth avenue modistes. Many wealthy brides have spent ten or twenty times this.

When Miss Gould marries Finley J. Shepard at her Tarrytown home Wednesday, she will be gowned in ivory white, with satin and rose point lace trimming, with a court train and a rose point veil. Miss Gould's favorite colors are purple and gray, and most of her trousseau is made up of these colors.

The lace which adorns the gown is very old and rare, and was a wedding gift to the bride.

The ceremony will be performed in the drawing room of Miss Gould's home, Lyndhurst. In this room George J. Gould married Edith Kingdon, and Helen and Dorothy Gould, the children of Miss Gould's brother Frank, were christened. These two nieces will be Miss Gould's only attendants. She chose next Wednesday for her wedding because it is the anniversary of her parents' wedding.

Louis J. Shepard will be his brother's best man. There will be no ushers. The ceremony will be performed at noon by the Rev. Dr. Daniel Russell, pastor of the Irvington Presbyterian Church. Only relatives and a few intimate friends have been asked to the marriage.

NOT ENOUGH NAMES ARE ATTACHED TO INITIATIVE LISTS

Election Board Will Not Make Formal Announcement Until Petitions Are Revised.

Examination of the 10 initiative petitions submitted by the People's League was continued Saturday by the Board of Election Commissioners, who found on the first count 13,200 names. The number necessary is 17,268, which would be 15 per cent of the vote cast for Mayor four years ago.

The Election Commissioners would not make an official announcement of the number of names because the lists must be carefully revised. On some of the petitions, it was said, names appear without addresses, which is a failure to comply with the law.

Other names are believed to have been placed on the petition by proxy. On one sheet five names appear, all in the same handwriting. The law requires personal signing and each circulator has made an affidavit that the names he presents are those of voters who signed their own names.

Chairman Kortjohn of the Election Board says the board will not make an announcement as to the number of names until each signature is checked off and the signer looked up on the registration lists to see if he is a voter and lives at the address given.

The board has 15 days in which to look over the lists and then 15 days will be allowed for amending the petitions. This will give those interested in the work an opportunity to add the needed number of names. When this has been done the board will have to inspect the added names.

As the proposed bills must be in the hands of the Municipal Assembly 40 days before the April election, there is little time to lose. If the full period is taken by the board and by the circulators of the petition to add signers the petitions will not be ready in time.

The election will be held April 1, the ninety-first day of the year, and the petitions must be submitted Feb. 20, which is 33 days from this date.

of the National Packing Co. from the representatives of Swift & Co. Armour & Co. and Morris & Co. at the selling points, and transmitted by the agents of the National Packing Co. to its main offices in Chicago.

"This condition of things existed harmoniously from the time of the incorporation of the National Packing Co. in 1903 until after the filing of the information in this case.

"It is very hard to believe that the directors of the National Packing Co. would so conduct that company as to injure the business of either Swift & Co., Armour & Co. or Morris & Co., and it is equally hard to believe that the directors of either of these last three companies would conduct its business so as to injure the business of the National Packing Co.

Declares Understanding Existed.

"While there is no direct testimony to the effect that either Swift & Co., Armour & Co. or Morris & Co. had any agreement or understanding of any kind with the National Packing Co. as to the conduct and management of its business and while some of the witnesses testified that they never knew of any arrangement, agreement or understanding of any kind between any of these companies, I have no hesitancy in finding and I do find that there was an agreement and understanding between Swift & Co., Armour & Co., Morris & Co. and the National Packing Co. and the respondents herein, and the other companies whose property and assets have been transferred to the National Packing Co. as aforesaid, as to the conduct of their business made and entered into with a view to lessen, restrict, limit and destroy free competition between said parties to said agreement in the purchase of cattle, sheep and hogs and in the sale of fresh meats and other packing house products in Missouri and in the United States and that said agreement and understanding was made for the purpose of fixing and maintaining the prices of cattle, sheep and hogs and the prices of fresh meats and other packing house products in the State of Missouri and in the United States, and for the purpose of controlling and limiting the amount and quantity of fresh meats and other packing house products sold and offered for sale in the State of Missouri and in the United States.

"From the large capital of Swift & Co., Armour & Co. and Morris & Co. and the National Packing Co., and the very large amount of business carried on and controlled by them throughout the United States and extending into Europe and Canada and interlacing in every direction, the combination was a most formidable one, but I do not think that the evidence is sufficiently specific in regard to the volume of business it controlled and the volume of business done by others to warrant the finding that the combination constituted a monopoly."

THIRD SUIT AGAINST MOTHERS-IN-LAW IS FILED IN WEEK

Plaintiff Wives Ask Cash Balm for Alienation of Affections of Husbands.

Henry Mayers and his wife, Minnie Mayers, of 3129 Chippewa street, were made defendants in a suit for $7500 damages, alleging alienation of affections, filed Saturday by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Anna Mayers, 3739 Michigan avenue. The petition recites that the plaintiff and the defendants' son, Fred, were married Nov. 26, 1908, and that he is now living away from his wife at the home of his parents. She says that he left her Jan. 28, 1911, and returned May 11 following, but deserted her again Nov. 4 last.

In the meantime the wife has been compelled to earn her living as a salesgirl in an Olive street candy store, she says. She charges that her husband's affection for her was destroyed by his parents and consequently she is deprived of his society, love and support.

According to Conrad Paeben, attorney for the wife, Mrs. Anna Mayers has been denied permission to see her husband. The elder Mayers are in the confectionery business.

This is the third alienation suit in which a mother-in-law is defendant filed this week. Charles G. Swoboda, 1519 Geyer avenue, is suing his wife's mother, Mrs. Mary Buchheimer, for $5000, alleging that she is responsible for the separation of him and her daughter. Mrs. Swoboda has brought suit for divorce.

The other mother-in-law suit is that of Mrs. Mary Thatcher, who charges that her husband's mother, Mrs. Anna Koerner, 5370 Theodosia avenue, "wickedly and maliciously" alienated the affections of plaintiff's husband, Frank Thatcher. Mrs. Thatcher values her husband's society and love at $10,000.

DIVORCE SUIT OF MRS. WEEKE IS UNDER ADVISEMENT

Alimony Decision Believed to Rest on Question of Weeke's Finances.

Judge William T. Jones has taken under advisement the application for divorce and alimony of Mrs. Nellie Weeke against Henry L. (Hank) Weeke, which was tried Friday. The Judge, it was understood, is considering Weeke's financial situation.

Mrs. Weeke's suit against Weeke—a Republican City Committeeman—attracted unusual attention because Mrs. Weeke, in a series of newspaper interviews, told how leading Republican politicians of St. Louis sought political favors and participated in poker games in her husband's home and saloon. She gave her stories the title of "Poker and Politics."

Nearly every member of the Republican City Committee and many of the officials of the city were involved in some way by Mrs. Weeke in her series of interviews. On the witness stand Friday she testified that poker games were played in her house, and in Weeke's saloon, but the Court ruled that it was not necessary for Mrs. Weeke to give the names of the players.

Mrs. Weeke's most startling statement on the stand was that soon after Mayor Kreismann took office she heard her husband, Jeptha D. Howe and Seebert G. Jones talking of how they had "shaken down" Kreismann for the nomination.

She testified that Weeke drank to excess and came home intoxicated five nights a week. She had to dress, bathe and shave him every day, she testified, for several years. She said she had to stay up until after midnight many times to cook for the poker players.

Weeke's conduct became such that she had to leave him in August, 1911, she testified. Her general complaint against him was that he did not properly support her, compelled her to do menial work and mistreated her when he came home under the infuence of liquor.

She testified that Weeke had considerable property, other than his saloon business, but other witnesses testified that Weeke was in a bad way financially. Gus Weeke, a brother, said that he owned the saloon at Thirteenth and Market streets, and that "Hank" was employed merely to manage it. He said he had been paying to Mrs. Weeke the $10 a week alimony allowed her by the Court, pending the outcome of the suit.

Weeke made no fight against the granting of the divorce, but contested Mrs. Weeke's claim for alimony.

SALOON KEEPER LOCKS INTRUDER IN ICE BOX

Says Man in Yard Fired on Him, Then He Caught and Put Him in Cooler.

John Dudd of 1206 North Third street, East St. Louis, was transferred from a saloon refrigerator to the police cooler Friday night.

He was placed in the saloon icebox by the proprietor, Nojk Skrha and two customers. Skrha told the police that he looked through his saloon window and saw a man taking shirts off the clothesline. He started into the yard, he said, and the man fired five shots at him.

When sure that the intruder had emptied his revolver Skrha rushed on him and overpowered him and called for help. The two customers aided him in putting the man in the refrigerator.

Dudd denies that he attempted to take shirts off the line. He said he was on his way to a masquerade ball and took a short cut through Skrha's yard. No revolver was found on him and he denied that he had one.

POWERS ADVISE TURKEY TO GIVE UP ADRIANOPLE

Ambassadors Promise to Protect Mussulmen and to Referee Aegean Island Division.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1913, by Press Publishing Co. (New York World.)

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The Times' Constantinople correspondent sends the text of the note of the Powers to Turkey, which was presented Friday and to which Turkey may reply today.

The Powers urge Turkey to agree to the cession of Adrianople and leave it to the Powers to determine the fate of the Aegean islands. In return the Powers will endeavor to safeguard the Mussulman interests in Adrianople and will see that the question of the islands is solved in a way that does not menace the security of Turkey.

The Porte is reminded that a renewal of the war would expose Turkey to grave perils and that on the conclusion of peace it will need the moral and material support of the Powers, whose support can only be effective to the extent that the Porte listen to their advice.

Greek Island Bombarded.

The Mail's Dardanelles correspondent says:

"The Turkish cruiser Hamidies left for the Aegean Sea Tuesday and was reported to have bombarded the Greek island of Symi, is as yet unaccounted for and it is said she has been captured, although this is not confirmed."

The Telegraph says:

"While everybody was waiting impatiently to learn what was the subject of the intensely secret grave deliberations of the ambassadorial conferences, nobody suspected that, among other grave difficult questions, the ambassadors were engaged in creating a new republic in Europe, yet that was the case.

Plan Republic of Monks.

"The ambassadors have decided that Mount Athos shall belong to no Balkan State and no great power, but shall be declared an independent church republic, governed by the monks, under the protectorate of all orthodox Balkan kingdoms. All the Balkan nations have monasteries in Athos."

Mount Athos is about 6500 feet high and is covered by monasteries, nothing but monks living there.

The Telegraph's Constantinople dispatch dated Thursday and sent via Constanza, says:

"A reign of terror prevails in Stamboul. An incipient revolt against the Porte occurred yesterday morning, but was quelled by the military. Disorders are feared from Kurdish elements. The Bourse exhibits a feeling of pessimism."

MELODRAMA CLIMAX IS FATAL TO SPECTATOR

Woman Dies in Theater, but Relatives Believe Home Worries Caused Heart Trouble.

While a melodramatic play was approaching its climax at the La Salle Theater Friday afternoon, Mrs. Meta Hirshfield, 45 years old, of 1918 Clara avenue, died of heart disease while her daughter, Elma, 18 years old, sat beside her.

Miss Hirschfield fainted when her mother fell in her arms. The young woman was taken home in an ambulance and did not know until several hours later that her mother was dead. Although the play had reached a point where detectives were about to arrest a desperate criminal, Miss Hirschfield Saturday said her mother did not seem greatly excited and just before she collapsed she leaned over and said to her daughter that one of the stock company players was acting his part very well.

Miss Hirschfield has been in poor health for several years and the mother worried because of this. It was this worry, members of the family think, which led to her heart trouble.

Railroad Inaugurates New System for Safety.

The Mobile & Ohio Railroad has inaugurated a system of instruction for employes regarding precautions to be taken for safety and also to impress upon them the necessity of calling attention to everything connected with the operation of the lines, likely to result in death or injury to patrons, employes or others.

The first move was the formation of safety committees comprising officers and employes on each division. The principal officers of the company, including the vice-president and general manager, general superintendent, General Council and chief surgeon have visited each point of importance upon the line and have there discussed with the employes all of the questions connected with safety of operation. One of these meetings was held at East St. Louis Thursday.

WIFE'S TWO SUITS ARE HUSBAND'S DIVORCE PLEA

W. R. Bedington Avers Filing and Dismissing Actions Are Indignities.

Two suits for divorce which she dismissed before a trial are assigned by William R. Bedington as grounds for divorce against Ada Bedington, 3883 Washington boulevard, in a suit filed Friday.

Bedington says that he filed answers to both suits brought by his wife, one of which was filed Sept. 17, 1910, and the other a year ago, and that she dismissed them before the charges could be heard by the court.

This litigation, he said, caused him unnecessary expense, also anguish of mind and he avers that he believes that his wife's action, amount to indignities sufficient to entitle him to a divorce. They were married Sept. 12, 1894, and separated July 29, 1909.

How to Avoid Serious Kidney and Bladder Trouble

The serious forms of kidney or bladder disease, such as Bright's disease, chronic rheumatism or dread diabetes, can be easily avoided if taken in time. The following simple formula should be taken as soon as first symptoms are noticed: Get six ounces best gin, add to it one-half ounce Murax Compound and one-half ounce fluid extract Buchu. Take one to two teaspoonfuls of this mixture after each meal and at bed time. It quickly stops back pains, rheumatic pains in the joints, dizziness and other well known indications which show weakness of these much worked organs.

The ingredients of this formula can be had in any well stocked drug store and are easily mixed. Be sure to use good pure gin, also the genuine Murax Compound, which comes only in sealed wooden tubes, as any substitute will not give such good results.—ADV.

FOR DELICATE CHILDREN

A Mother's Letter to Mothers.

Mrs. E. W. Cooper of Bloomfield, N. J., says: "My child, seven years old, had a bad cold and was weak and quite run down in health. She had been in this condition for about six weeks when I began giving her Vinol. It was a wonderful help to the child, breaking up her cold quickly and building up her strength beside. I have also found Vinol a most excellent tonic for keeping up the children's strength during a siege of whooping cough."

Vinol is a wonderful combination of two world-famed tonics—the medicinal body building elements of cod liver oil and iron for the blood, therefore it is a perfectly safe medicine for children, because it is not a patent medicine, everything in it is printed on every package, so mothers may know what they are giving their little ones.

Therefore we ask every mother of a weak, sickly or ailing child in this vicinity to try Vinol on our guarantee. Chester Kent & Co., Chemists, [illegible] Wilson Drug Co., [illegible]

SINGER IN RAGS IN TRYOUT WINS AT THE METROPOLITAN

Pasquale Amato Embraces Russian Youth and Says He Will Teach Him Free.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Theodore Kittay, the half-starved Russian youth with a tenor voice, discovered Thursday night by a reporter, when Kittay was being ordered from the Plaza Hotel because he looked like a tramp, is the most talked-of singer in New York this morning.

As the Post-Dispatch told yesterday, Kittay first sang at the Plaza, when some women heard him say he was a singer, asked in a joking way that he show his ability. He sang again when Mrs. Edward Breitung, who had heard him as he came down Fifth avenue giving an aria from "Faust," took him to her apartment in the St. Regis. There he so charmed those who heard the marvelous sweetness and strength of his voice that yesterday afternoon he got a trial on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.

After he had left Mrs. Breitung's apartment Thursday night, Kittay was taken charge of by the reporter who had discovered him. The singer was taken to his little room at 82 Avenue B after he had got more to eat than he has had at one time since his arrival in November.

Excited Over Trial.

So he was no longer hungry when he appeared at the opera house. But he wore the same old velvet jacket, the same threadbare, rumpled trousers and the same threadbare shoes. He was highly excited.

Waiting to receive him were Guilio Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera House; Pasquale Amato, baritone; Giuseppe Steurani, conductor; F. C. Coppicus, head of the concert department, and Harry Tyroler, assistant conductor. Half a dozen musical critics were on hand.

The East Side singer was almost stunned by the presence of those who had come to hear his voice and he trembled as he stood on the stage; but the moment Tyroler struck the keys to begin a piano accompaniment, Kittay's self-composure returned.

As he sang an unusual scene took place. Thousands of ambitious singers display their vocal wares on the stage of the Metropolitan in useless trials. The stage attendants and other attaches are used to them, and pay no attention.

Even Blase Stage Hands Listened.

But when the first rich notes of the penniless young man floated out over the empty seats and up to the boxes, the workers stopped. Soon they were gathered in listening groups behind the wings and in darkened corners. There was not a sound except melody until the last note had died away.

After he had finished there were tears in his eyes, and his hand shook as he pointed to the top gallery and said:

"I came there once and heard the great Caruso sing."

"He has a warm sympathetic voice, a beautiful voice, especially in the high notes," was Gatti-Casazza's verdict. In two months' time I will tell you more. In that time he must be trained."

"He has a wonderful voice," said Amato, "and this is what I will do. I do not teach singing, but I will take this boy and teach him for the two months without price, for he has a future. His voice is of good quality. What he needs is physical, mental and vocal repose for a time, with no worry. Then we shall hear a voice."

Sturani's verdict was that Kittay's voice was accurate, warm and expressive and that he could be developed into a wonderful tenor.

"You will see me soon," said Amato, putting his arm about the young chap's shoulders.

"Oh, it seems almost too good to be true," said Mrs. Breitung, a correspondent for the Post-Dispatch at the St. Regis. "I knew he had a voice—a truly great voice—and I shall see that he gets means necessary to develop it."

150 ENTOMBED SIX HOURS

Miners Wait on Repairs to Machinery When Boilers Explode.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Jan. 18.—For six hours 150 coal miners were entombed in the North Riverside Mine near here. Soon after the men entered the pit the engine house boilers exploded, stopping all machinery, including the fan which supplies air to the tunnels.

By means of telephones the miners were informed that they were locked in, and that they were in no danger. Huddled together, they waited anxiously until the boilers were repaired and they were released. Frightened relatives of the miners gathered at the mine office and waited until the men were rescued.

CLASSMATES MADE HIM WEAR LONG PANTS

TALL LAD FORCED TO DON LONG PANTS FOR GRADUATION

The momentous question of whether Leo Grosh should be forced to wear long trousers instead of short pants at the graduating exercises of the Alton High School has been settled. The 17-year-old boy, whose love for short pants caused the agitation, has surrendered. He appeared at a class reception at the home of one of the professors, Friday night, in trousers of regulation length.

Mrs. Frank Grosh, mother of Leo, wanted to keep him young looking. He was her youngest son, she told a Post-Dispatch correspondent, and she said that she could not bear the thought of him doffing his knee pants for trousers.

But the members of the high school class thought differently, and every member except Miss Bessie McKee voted that unless Grosh wore trousers he should not be permitted to be graduated with the other members.

Always a Girlish Boy.

When the superintendent, B. C. Richardson, heard of what was going on, he issued an ultimatum to the class to the effect that it should not be permitted to interfere in the matter of he clothes worn by any student.

Mrs. Grosh said that Leo had always been a girlish boy, and that he liked to wear knee pants. The boy said he heard that the students had collected money to buy a pair of trousers for him, and that they intended to kidnap him and put them on him.

"I decided to beat them to it by discarding my knee pants and wearing trousers," he said. "I did not like to do it, but I was tired of being called a 'sissy boy.'"

Long Pants Demanded.

A resolution demanding that Grosh wear trousers instead of knickerbockers was passed by the class at a meeting Thursday. Grosh is the tallest boy in the class. He is five feet, eight inches, and weighs 100 pounds. The students declared that it would be undignified for a member of the class to be graduated in knickerbockers. Miss McKee made a speech in Grosh's behalf, opposing the resolution. She and Grosh were the only members of the class of 17 who voted against it.

JOHN D. PLANS BEGGING LETTER CLEARING HOUSE

Oil Magnate Would Relieve Himself and Other Millionaires of Charity Inquiries.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—A clearing house for begging letters sent to philanthropists would be one of the adjuncts of the $100,000,000 Rockefeller Foundation, a Federal charter for which Congress, on Monday, will be asked to grant, according to Jerome D. Greene, former secretary of Harvard University and now an adviser of the Standard Oil magnate.

Greene is here seeking to have Congress, at this session, incorporate the association which Rockefeller is anxious to endow.

"Mr. Rockefeller receives at least 100 begging letters every day," said Greene. "They ask financial aid in sums ranging from $5 to amounts in seven figures.

"Under present conditions it is utterly impossible for Mr. Rockefeller, even with the assistance of a large staff, personally to give attention to this volume of correspondence, and doubtless many worthy objects of philanthropy have gone without the financial support they sought.

"However, with the Rockefeller Foundation in existence, having an annual income of $5,000,000 and a sufficient corps of trained investigators, it would be possible to handle not alone that part of Mr. Rockefeller's correspondence, but the same kind of mail reaching other philanthropists as well, with justice and dispatch."

BRANDT ON WAY TO MINNESOTA TO BEGIN LIFE ANEW

Former Schiff Servant Won't Discuss Pardon After Serving Six Years in Prison.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—After six of the 30 years to which he was sentenced for burglary at the home of Mortimer L. Schiff, where he was a servant, Foulke E. Brandt left for the West on an early morning train today to enjoy the freedom of the pardon granted to him yesterday by Gov. Sulzer because the sentence was excessive.

Brandt was accompanied by United States Senator Nelson of Minnesota, and he will stop first in Washington before going to Minnesota to begin life anew. A large number of members of Swedish societies were at the Pennsylvania Station to shake his hand and wish him luck.

Brandt very assiduously followed the instructions of Gov. Sulzer that he should not discuss his case. He has been warned that if he does discuss the statements previously made, which he retracted publicly yesterday, or seeks to gain any notoriety by either writing of his case or appearing on the stage, the pardon will be revoked.

MRS. A. CAMPBELL

Mrs. Campbell's doctor advised her to take a tablespoonful of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey before each meal. She did so and recovered health and youthful feeling.

"Eight years ago, when sick, I lost my appetite. I could not eat solid foods. My family physician advised taking a tablespoonful of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey before each meal as a stimulant, as it was good for the system. It did much more good than the doctor said. I feel more like fifty years old than sixty-nine. My appetite is splendid, and I find a tablespoonful of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is very invigorating. A dealer tried to sell me a substitute for Duffy's, but the doctor told me to insist on the genuine; that some dealers tried to sell something else to make more profit on inferior goods." Mrs. A. Campbell, 1111 West Ninth Street, Spokane, Wash.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

Mrs. Campbell's experience is similar to that of thousands of men and women who have been brought back to a state of health and vigor by using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as directed. Many learn its great medicinal value first from their own family doctors. Others hear from friends or relatives direct. Still others read the testimonials of those who are so grateful to Duffy's that they wish to aid fellow sufferers by writing of their good fortune in using this pure malt whiskey.

LITTLE THEATER PLAYERS COMING FOR FIVE NIGHTS

One-Act Satire by Orrick Johns Will Be Produced by Excellent Chicago Cast.

GUARANTEE FUND RAISED

Prominent Society Folk Aid Committee Under Leadership of Dwight F. Davis.

Society leaders of St. Louis have guaranteed a fund to bring the Little Theater Company of Chicago to St. Louis for five performances in February. A satirical comedy by a St. Louis writer will be given its premier production in the reportoire of the company of 20 players during the St. Louis visit.

A small hall in St. Louis will be chosen for the performances and the productions will be much the same as in the Little Theater, Chicago. No footlights will be used and the scenery will be very simple. The company is classed as one of the two most artistic organizations in America.

Dwight F. Davis is chairman of the committee bringing the players here. The company will be under the direction of Bernard Gallant and Orrick Johns of St. Louis, winner of the lyric year prize of 1912 in New York.

"Erring Geraldine," a one-act modern society satire on the subject of maternity written by Johns, will be given its first production Feb. 25, the second night of the players' repertoire. It will be given in connection with the one-act drama, "Creditors," by Strindberg, a Swedish playwright, who died recently.

The company will give no matinees, but will give performances nightly from Feb. 24 to 28 inclusive. Other plays to be given are "Anatol," by Arthur Schnitzler, and "Trojan Women," by Euripides, translated by Gilbert Murray.

Among those who have contributed to bring the players to St. Louis are Mrs. Charles P. Pettus, Mrs. John T. Davis, Mrs. Charles C. Collins, Dwight F. Davis, Joseph Pulitzer Jr., Clay Arthur Pierce, W. C. Fordyce, Daniel K. Catlin, J. L. Mauran, George W. Simmons, Howard Benoist, Ford W. Thompson, David O'Neil, E. M. Grossman, F. M. Crunden, Eugene H. Angert, Louis M. Rumsey and Allen T. West.

C. & A. Has No-Stop Train to Kansas City.

Kansas City is brought closer to St. Louis by the new "no-stop train" that the Chicago & Alton Railroad has just added to its service. This train "with all the comforts of home," leaves St. Louis at 11:30 p. m. and arrives in Kansas City at 7:45 a. m. It not only doesn't stop en route, but as one of the porters aptly put it: "It doesn't even hesitate."

HORSE STARTS TOWN ROW

Effort to Take Control of Affairs From the Buyers.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 18.—From a street corner quarrel as to whether an old gray mare, said to have been unable to eat until its teeth were filled, was worth the $192 the city paid for it, a controversy has grown to a pitched battle for the control of Rosedale, Kan., a suburb of Kansas City.

The first legal skirmish took place when the Taxpayers' Good Government League of the town went into court with a long list of allegations. Today the Rosedale officials were restrained under a temporary injunction from paying salaries or spending a cent of public money until Jan. 25, when the court will hear the charges against Mayor Samuel W. Clasen and his official colleagues.

BANKS' REFUSAL TO NAME BORROWERS CHECKS INQUIRY

Pujo Announces That Money Trust Committee Cannot Force Information.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Refusal of national banks to give to the House Money Trust Investigating Committee information as to borrowers of $1,000,000 and more has caused Chairman Pujo of the committee and his associates to restrict the intended scope of the inquiry. So far the committee has failed to find authority for compelling this information. As a consequence the sessions will end Friday of next week.

"Without this information and in the absence of means of ascertaining the character, of the business done by the banks that have made huge profits in a comparatively short time," said Pujo, "it is manifestly impossible for the committee to ascertain whether, and if so to what extent these banks and their funds have been and are being used by the great financial interests in the furtherance of their schemes or to the exclusion of competing business."

Forty Witnesses Remain.

In announcing the suspension of the oral hearings, Pujo points out that there are still upwards of 40 witnesses on the committee's list who have not been examined and many important subjects bearing on the inquiry that have not been touched upon.

"When this committee was appointed," continues the statement, "it was announced that owing to the doubt raised by the banks as to the power to inquire into their affairs, acting upon concentration and control of money and credit, it would be necessary to have further power. The bill conferring such power that has passed the House is pending in the Senate.

"Since then the committee has repeatedly announced that it cannot thoroughly or satisfactorily complete its labors without the exercise of this power which has been denied by the banks.

"Appeals to President Taft and the Comptroller of the Currency for the information which was within the power of the President to grant met with long delays that have embarrassed the work of the committee, but have resulted in no relief.

"The banks curiously regard even the character of the assets as secret information that they are entitled to withhold from the scrutiny of this committee.

"It would require at least three months after access to the banks is granted the committee to gather the data for further oral testimony, from which it is manifest that even if the pending bill were now passed nothing in that direction can be accompanied during the present Congress. The short time intervening before the expiration of this Congress will be required for the preparation of an intermediate report and recommendations for legislation.

More Power Must Be Given.

"The work delegated to the committee is, however, far from completed. In some of its most important aspects it has barely begun, but if it is to be continued far more comprehensive powers must be granted through further legislation.

"The committee will convene Feb. 25 to consider its report. Some further documentary proof may then be introduced to be embodied in the report."

WIFE COMPELLED TO ACCOUNT FOR 75C A DAY SUES

Mrs. G. W. Stinebaker Charges City Employe Forced Her to Live Among "Beer Canners."

George W. Stinebaker, a Street Department clerk, formerly a member of the Republican City Committee, was sued for divorce Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Minnie Stinebaker, to whom he was married March 25, 1890, and from whom he has been separated, according to her petition, since Aug. 6 last.

One of her allegations is that he required her to live in a part of the city where the neighbors "can bee' and that she had to witness this beer-canning. The Stinebakers address is given in the city directory as 913 North Nineteenth street.

She charges that Stinebaker required from her an itemized list of all her expenditures, down to an ice cream soda, and that he allowed her but 75 cents a day for running the house. Out of this sum, she says, she had to pay carfare and lunch money for their two sons, who were working, so that she often had nothing left to buy food for her own lunch. Stinebaker, she alleges, took what the boys earned.

She says that her husband, who was 16 years older than she, was distatorial and overbearing and treated her as a servant. Since her father died 16 years ago, she says, he has treated her coldly, and not as a companion.

BRIAND LIKELY TO BE NEW FRENCH PREMIER

Asked by Fallieres to Form Cabinet to Succeed Poincare's Associates.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—President Fallieres today invited Aristide Briand, the Minister of Justice to form a cabinet in succession to the retiring Poincare Ministry.

The President, following the usual custom, consulted with Antonin Dubost and Paul Deschanel, President of the Senate and President of the Chamber of Deputies, respectively, before offering the task to Briand. After a talk with Fallieres, Briand replied that he would consult his political friends and give a definite answer.

Briand's attitude is assumed generally to favor his acceptance of the Premiership. Either Leon Bourgoes, Minister of Labor or Stephen Pinchon, ax-Minister for Foreign Affairs, will be asked, it is understood, to take the foreign portfolio in the new ministry.

The vessel is 75 feet long and cost $44,000. It turned on its side when it reached the water and sank in four fathoms.

DIES FROM CHEWING GUM

Hospital Patient Chokes, Then Bursts Blood Vessel.

DECATUR, Ill., Jan. 18.—Because he chewed gum in bed James Crusolius, a coal miner, died in a Taylorville, Ill., hospital today. Crusolius was in the hospital because of an attack of rheumatism. Gum he was chewing lodged in his throat Friday and strangled him.

In coughing to dislodge the gum it is thought he burst a blood vessel in his head.

YOUNG ZIMBALIST WINS ACCLAIM AS SYMPHONY'S STAR

Heard in Brahms D Major Concerto, He Qualifies Convincingly as a Great Violinist.

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.

EFREM ZIMBALIST, quite generally acclaimed as the greatest among the younger violinists of today, was the solo figure of Friday afternoon's Symphony concert, to be repeated this evening, and his first St. Louis appearance ranks as one of the most memorable musical events of the present season.

His program number was the exceedingly worthy and beautiful Brahms concerto for violin in D Major, Opus 77, a composition not safely to be attempted by any but master fiddlers if discomfiture is to be escaped. Justifying the enthusiasm with which he has been received in New York, the new and youthful violin virtuoso commended himself to his audience as an artist of sincere attainment and inspiration.

Pleasingly, too, remembering his scant 23 years and the fact that he comes with a European reputation of several seasons' establishing, the perilous hallmark of the "infant prodigy" has not been stamped upon Zimbalist's work. He invites judgment on the sound basis of achievement that measures itself against that of the more mature "great ones" of his time. And, happily, he wins his place by virtue of the verdict thus reached.

While he is not as yet an Ysaye or a Kreisler, this young man is undeniably a great violinist with an especially brilliant promise of consistent growth that shall bring him abreast of those older masters of his chosen instrument. A fine sincerity and simplicity mark his performance. He refuses to pose. Instead of spotlighting himself by means of the many tricks possible to violin virtuosity, he seeks to "deliver the goods" in all honesty of soul.

The most immediate showing made by Zimbalist in his interpretation of the Brahms score was that of a splendid gift for tonal development. He draws from the violin the very best of its singing and dramatic voice, and he maintains its purity and power at all moments.

There came a time during his Friday afternoon playing when he was put to an unexpected test in this respect. The sudden snapping of a string on his own instrument, while he was intent upon his presentation of the exquisite second movement of the Brahms concerto, necessitated his swift borrowing of Concert Master Hugo Olk's sweet-throated little fiddle.

Very placidly then did Zimbalist devote himself to the employment of this unfamiliar instrument—and very convincingly did he continue his submission of proof that he is a tone master of indomitable genuineness.

The competent production of tone, however, is but one of the important necessities of great fiddling. Zimbalist does not stop with this example of his quality. Nor is he content with the presentation of a technique which speaks eloquently of arduous training and rigid discipline.

He qualifies as an interpreter of great musical thought. His revelation of the Brahms mood in the score now under consideration was sincerely inspired and of truly faithful poetic insight. It has not the depth and breadth that come of a wider experience of life and a fuller possession of emotional experience, but it is remarkable for intuitive truthfulness.

There were one or two moments in the second movement, the adagio, when a genuinely big note of passion and hinted tragedy was finely sounded. In this movement, also, the violin's singing of its first theme, originally introduced in the voice of the oboe, was an achievement calculated to delight the most critical ear. The introductory cadenza of the first movement, following so beautifully the orchestra's own proclamation through wood-winds and strings, was exquisitely achieved by the solo violin. In the concerto's final movement, calling most insistently for technical brilliancy, young Zimbalist proved himself entirely adequate.

His two encores, granted in response to the audience's overwhelming demand, were Cyril Scott's "The Dance," and a Chopin waltz, with Eugen Lutsky as accompanist. Here, also the technique of the solo star was convincingly brought into evidence.

The orchestra distinguished itself as the accompanying voice in the Brahms concerto, but, as a matter of course, its own great triumph was achieved with the program's opening number, Robert Schumann's lovely Symphony No. 1 in B flat, Opus 37, which was masterfully presented. The Sinigaglia overture, "La Baruffe Chiozotte," now heard in St. Louis for the first time, greatly pleased its audience. It is a gay and spirited score, skilfully developed with the lightest of touches, possessing also a quite distinct appeal of melodic charm.

In the Audience.

Among those attending were. Mrs. William J. Mitchell and her daughter, Miss Mary F. Mitchell, who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Markham.

Miss July Collins and Miss Anne Collins were in the Charles Cummings Collins box.

Mrs. Robert Nolker and her sister, Mrs. Mabelle H. Teasdale, were together in another box.

Mrs. Douglas G. Cook was in a box near by with Mrs. David G. Evans.

Mrs. William Nesbit Mathews, Mrs. Harry Lodge, Mrs. W. E. Graves, Mrs. W. K. Kavanaugh and her daughter, Miss Sarah Talbot Kavanaugh, occupied a box.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lawrence Maurau had as their guest Mrs. George W. Simmons.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Davis Jr. had with them in their box Mrs. Davis' mother, Mrs. Derrick A. January.

Mr. Robert Floyd Jones and his daughter, Miss Katherine Floyd Jones, were the guests of Dr. Ernst Saxl in his box.

Miss Margaret Ball and Miss Philippa Ball occupied the mother's box.

A FACTORY GIRL

WITH hands now empty and now full,
Until they're dumb, she feeds a loom,
Which buzzes as it eats the wool.
All day she looks for evening's gloom
To come and soothe her aching eyes.
She does not see the mystic way
The patterned roses spring to bloom.
'Twould even cause a vague surprise
If she beheld them, pink and gray,
Hereafter in some dining room.

Poor soul without a daytime home,
She's done, as most among us do,
The task of a small, patient gnome,
Nor sighed before the whistle blew.
Later, in halls where dancers teem,
She finds the courage and the coin
To weave this human shuttle, too.
And in the magic midnight dream
Where all her rays of rapture join.
The buzzing of the loom runs through.

From "The Youth Replies," a book of verses by Louis How. (Sherman, French & Co.)

THE GREATEST STORY.

THACKERAY studied Defoe. If Defoe could have studied Thackeray, what miracles of the meaning of life, pictured in the plainest English, the world might have had! If the age of books, the English novelist who studies both Defoe and Thackeray may still do wonders. That is, he may, if he has them in himself after learning how to work them out. This is what A. S. M. Hutchinson is now doing. He is learning from the great masters of the English language to work out his own best. He learns also from the little masters. If Thackeray, Scott, Dickens and Defoe teach him more than he can use, he finds what he can use in the teachings of George Borrow and Stevenson. He goes back of Kipling and all the Eurasians who learn literature "somewhere east of Suez, where there ain't no decalogue." He goes back of the esthetes and sexualists, back of the parlor pessimists and Fabian Revolutionists, who breathe out acid fumes when they are preaching a vegetarian diet; back of all the garbage dumps on the surface and past all the sewer openings of a quarter of a London century. And back of it all, he finds life as the Great Romance, with the question of the happy ending always pressing to be answered for every generation.

This is another way of saying that Hutchinson is on the way to the production of his own masterpiece. "The Broad Highway" showed what it means to go for. Now "The Happy Warrior" shows that he can go farther. He is doing the best work in English fiction that has come out of London in many a day. He takes Wadsworth as his warrant for what the best in life means as an inspiration for the best in literature. His "Happy Warrior" is not a hero, a marvel, a superman, but a man with a beast in him. "God, what a beast a man can be," the Happy Warrior cries when he first discovers that he must either master or be mastered by the beast in himself. This is the key of a plot in which otherwise there is no novelty. "The life of man is a warfare on earth and as the days of a hireling are his days." The thrill of the struggle for the spectators whom Saint George and the dragon join issues belongs to the surface. They do not know at the time that what they see is merely staged for them in the last act of Saint George's struggle with his own beast. So in this story, the man who is no saint, finds that to live or die a man he must not live and die a beast. He does not surrender. He fights the beast.

From start to finish there is life in the struggle. It is life, not psychology. To accept every humiliation and go through it, to face disgrace and die rather than endure it—that is the story of the making of a gentleman. That is the story Hutchinson tells in "The Happy Warrior." In life itself, it is the greatest story. Hutchinson tells it in his own way, as he is trying to find the best way possible—the greatest way. He deserves to succeed in that. In the meantime he has made the beginning for something infinitely better in London fiction than what American readers know of it from its imported tonnage during the last 15 years. (Little, Brown & Co.)

ANTIDOTE TO OMAR'S POISON.

EDWARD ROBESON TAYLOR, a Boston poet, gives us a book of verse with the title "Into the Light," (Sherman, French) which opens with a poem that aims to be an antidote to the sweet pessimism of Omar Khayyam. In it the reader is pictured as finding, in utter sympathy with Nature, accepting her as she is, a simple peace and contentment which needs no "jar of wine" or sensual delight to make it Paradise. There are 83 stanzas to this poem, of which the following, selected here and there, will show the quality.

In all the stresses of thy daily rounds
Still bend thine ear to catch the loveliest sounds,
Still train thy thoughts to catch the noblest things,
Still feel that Service never can have bounds.

It cannot matter, for we are so small
A part of the immeasurable All,
If what thy demon whispers in thine ear
When pleasures lure thee as when shadows fall.

But know that every eon which has gone
Before thee since life's earliest breath was drawn
Has helped compound thee into what thou art—
A deathless spirit moving on and on.

Couldst thou but learn to feel, without surcease,
Though woes and dangers round thee still increase,
Thyself a part of the eternal scheme,
Thy soul might anchor in the port of Peace.

"THE MAKING OF A NEWSPAPER MAN."

IT is refreshing to read a tale of newspaper life by a man who has been in the business deep enough and long enough to know the difference between a take of indented nonpareil and a jim dash. Samuel G. Blythe, in his story, "The Making of a Newspaper Man," shows he has been through the newspaper mill. It is a plain story of his own experience from the time he was a country correspondent until he became the manager of the Washington bureau of the bigest newspaper in New York.

His experience proves the statement in his concluding chapter; the newspaper game is worth while for the youth who enters it prepared to learn to write. It is no calling for the man or woman who goes into the business because "it is so easy to write" and there is no reward in the newspaper office for the man who selects the craft as a makeshift. The author agrees that newspaper men could do a great deal better in a commercial line if they are after money exclusively.

But he convincingly upholds the dignity and opportunity of newspaper work. He points to the potential power for good possessed by the reporter and argues that it is up to the individuals, whether he lives well and happily. Mr. Blythe prefers the writing end of the game to the executive as being less of a grind and surer of continuous reward in the years of advanced age. (Henry Altemus Co., Philadelphia.)

FOR THE BEST SERVICE

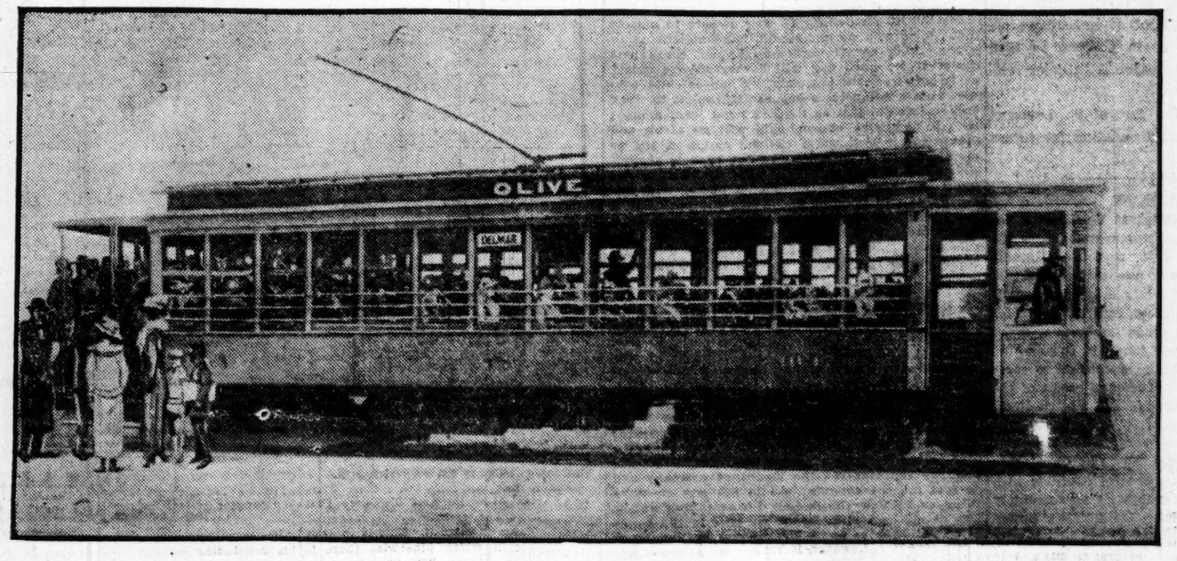

Public Co-operation Will Increase the Efficiency of the United Railways and Insure Public Satisfaction—THE WAY

THE officials of THE UNITED RAILWAYS are constantly striving to give BETTER SERVICE tomorrow than they gave yesterday. Mechanical appliances of every type are adopted on the cars as fast as their practicability and efficiency are proved. The public can do much to increase this efficiency by observing a few simple safeguards and by assisting the company's employes.

DO NOT GET ON OR OFF A MOVING CAR

Leave the car by the front door and you will avoid interference with passengers who are entering.

The United Railways Company desires the service to reach the maximum of efficiency. This can only be done with your co-operation.

Patrons will greatly facilitate matters by stepping forward promptly on boarding a car. The illustration shows a car crowded in the rear and on the back platform, with plenty of room in front.

This is frequently the cause of delay and inconvenience to those entering.

This Will Avoid Delays and Accidents

Delays incident to stopping while taking on passengers will be lessened if passengers will wait a car's length—50 feet—inside the NEAR crossing. Waiting at this point will avoid many accidents.

What the Company Is Doing to Better the Service

Studying and watching always the riding habits of its passengers, which vary according to the weather, the season, the month and the day of the week and business conditions.

Adapting the operation of cars to these needs, and endeavoring always to meet promptly the demands of the public, however eccentric and exacting these demands may be.

Carefully selecting and training its trainmen, and endeavoring to keep good men in its service by making their positions attractive and discipline as rigid as is fair.

Extending the system of short-looping cars in the business district for the purpose of minimizing congestion and equalizing accommodation.

Constantly building and rebuilding cars, tracks and other appliances to conform to the latest and most improved practice and requirement.

Maintaining expert trouble crews supplied with automobiles and every device for emergency work on duty day and night, ready for instant response always.

Maintaining immense repair shops employing nearly 1000 men for the sole purpose of keeping in repair its rolling stock.

Studying the latest methods in the railway art, noting the best that is in use everywhere, adopting any method which promises to improve service, and keeping in the vanguard of railway progress through study, watchful observation and experiment by our experts, who devote their lives to this work.

What the Public Can Do to Better the Service

Have patience in case of delay; it is usually not the fault of the Company.

In case of delay, take the third, fourth, or fifth car; as the first and second cars are probably crowded, let them go by.

Have the fare ready when entering, thus avoiding delay allowing the car to proceed as soon as possible.

After paying fare, pass into car as far forward as possible.

Leave the car by the front door so as to avoid interference with passengers entering at the rear.

Do not remain on the rear platform, thus interfering with passengers boarding the car.

You are entitled to courteous treatment. We want you to have it under all conditions. You will help us in accomplishing this if you will be fair with the conductor or motorman.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

BIGGEST WEST OF THE MISSISSIPPI.

ELECTING A FRENCH PRESIDENT.

Yesterday's meeting of the National Assembly of France resulted in the election of M. Poincare to the presidency and, among other politenesses, two challenges to duels.

Although the Senators and Deputies of France approach the election of a President with much less of tumult and turbulence than mark the nomination of a candidate for the presidency in this country, it must not be concluded there is less of jealousy and bitterness in the strife. There is sometimes more venom in the politely murmured gossip around a tea table than in the invective shouted forth to a mob in the streets. The presidency of France, though not so powerful in politics as that of the United States, is more powerful in other ways, such as the bestowing of honors and the conferring of social eminence. It is, therefore, a great prize to struggle for, and intrigues deriving power and influence from all sorts of sources, political, financial, social, clerical and military, are at work to win it.

ENFORCE THE MUZZLING ORDER.

The demand for strict enforcement of the dog-muzzling order is no "half-baked clamor," but is the result of a condition that threatens the safety of all the people. An attempt to make the order ineffective on the plea that it works a hardship to those who "keep dogs of the right kind in the right way" should fail. The only way to keep a dog while this order stands is either muzzled or on a chain. Neglect to do this is evidence of callous disregard of the public welfare. Everyone must co-operate in this crusade to exterminate hydrophobia.

ENLARGING THE SUPREME COURT.

Senator Gore's proposal that the membership of the United States Supreme Court be changed from nine to eleven involves no startling innovation. The legal number has varied at various periods in the country's history.

The Constitution of the United States merely provides that "the judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish." The first Supreme Court, appointed by Washington in 1789 was in accordance with an act of the First Congress, and consisted of a Chief Justice and five Associate Justices, of whom four should make a quorum. Since then the legal membership of the court has been changed from six to ten, as Congress saw fit to provide. At present it is nine, not because of any constitutional requirement but by statutory provision.

In the beginning there was little need for a large court. In the first year of Chief Justice Marshall's term only ten cases were filed. A century later, in 1901, 383 cases were filed.

What experience has most thoroughly demonstrated is the necessity of an uneven number of Justices, a fact that Washington and his contemporaries did not realize. Neither could they foresee the place the court was to occupy in the coming years in the Government of the United States.

POPULAR SENATORIAL ELECTIONS.

Notice of the submission by Congress of the amendment to the Federal Constitution for the direct election of Senators was sent to the several states by Secretary Knox on May 17, last, and in a number of legislatures ratification was the first matter of importance to receive attention on assembling early this month. The New York House voted for ratification with only four opposing votes on last Tuesday, and the measure was taken up the next day in the Senate and immediately approved. The State Senate of North Carolina voted its approval also on Tuesday, and similar action in the House at Raleigh is predicted for next week. The final step in ratification by both Houses of the Ohio Legislature was taken at Columbus on Thursday.

A discussion of years has prepared the country for this change. A speech by Senator Owen a year and a half ago gave a list of 26 states whose impatience for the opportunity to vote for it had caused them to urge its submission on Congress. The Missouri Legislature passed a resolution of the sort on March 6, 1907. The wait of nearly six years since that time should result in an eagerness for expeditious action at Jefferson City. Public opinion on the subject can be reflected in the promptness as well as the unanimity of the action.

Regular legislative sessions will be held in 33 states this year. The indications are that ratification by the requisite 36 states will be given in record time from the date of submission.

A ST. LOUIS OPPORTUNITY.

In his interview with the Post-Dispatch, in which he vigorously urged home rule for cities, President-elect Wilson emphasized the importance of combining simplified municipal government with local self-government. After quoting his strong message on the subject to the New Jersey Legislature recommending that "the fullest and freest rights of self-government" be granted to municipalities, he added:

"But I think simplified municipal government vitally important to home rule."

Mr. Wilson explained that simplified government is necessary to popular control, which is hampered by complicated governmental organization, with a multiplicity of independent departments and vague responsibility.

The Post-Dispatch has commented on the timely significance of the President-elect's message with regard to the home rule bills, in the State Legislature, relating to St. Louis.

But the emphasis he laid on the importance of linking simplified government with home rule is as timely for the House of Delegates, where the bill providing for a Board of Freeholders is pending.

St. Louis has an opportunity to get the happy combination of simpler and more efficient local government with self-government. It rests largely with St. Louisans. The State administration is pledged to give St. Louis a full measure of home rule, and the House of Delegates should be convinced of the overwhelming sentiment in favor of a new, progressive charter.

With ample power to control public utilities, to put through extensive public improvements; with reasonable provision for the initiative, the referendum and the recall of administrative officers, St. Louis would be in position to take over all the powers and responsibilities of self-government with success.

Unity of purpose on the part of St. Louisans will give the city a sound foundation for future growth and progress.

CENTRAL BANK.

Mr. Festus J. Wade pleaded at Washington for a central bank. Previous statements before the Pujo Committee seem to show that to all intents and purposes a central bank now exists—one that is excessively central. Wherein does the centralized and interlocked banking control, to which those who exert it have made confession, differ from the bank Gen. Jackson fought? It lacks the recognition of Government incorporation to serve as a providence over the finance and credit of the country, but the Government did not hesitate to advance it $25,000,000 in 1907 to save its stock gambling customers.

Gov. Wilson's words are an assurance that wherever the Morgan-Baker control conflicts with the public interest he will fight it as resolutely as Gen. Jackson fought Nicholas Biddle's United States Bank control wherever it conflicted with public interest. More than 50 Congressmen held stock to large amounts in the United States Bank. A third of all the Congressmen held stock to some amount. That made Jackson's task difficult.

But Gov. Wilson's task will not be less difficult. The Morgan control over the general banking interests of the country is greater and may be harder to dislodge than the Biddle control.

THE FORTUNE TELLING GRAFT.

Representatives Orr of Livingston and Bretz of Buchanan have each introduced a bill aimed at those who pretend to tell fortunes. The passage of legislation of this character would supply a curious omission in Missouri law. Under most codes imposture of this species has been outlawed for generations. The practices of those who have been driven out of other states to impose on credulous Missourians are objectionable enough when their exactions are confined to modest fees for assuming to foretell the coming happenings. But unscrupulous persons who profess clairvoyant powers have perpetrated bare-faced but ingenious swindles by which their too trustful victims have been defrauded out of considerable sums.

To make fortune telling a felony will not be too severe. Means for fighting the graft of commercialized clairvoyancy in the larger cities of the State should not be withheld from the law officers by the Legislature.

BOUNTIES FOR BRITISH BABIES.

Poverty is said to be a handicap to so many British subjects during the first weeks of their existence that the relief furnished by the bounty of $7.50 hereafter to be given to the parents of children born in the United Kingdom is expected to bring about a great improvement in the physique of the next generation. Mothers are also to receive payments during the first three or four weeks of the life of the small British stranger.

Subsidies for children appear to be a great improvement over the only kind of subsidies the United States knows very much about—sugar subsidies and ship subsidies. The astonishing statement is made that of 1,200,000 children born annually in the British Isles, at least 1,000,000 will be beneficiaries of the new payments. The inference is that only about 200,000 enter the world without the handicap of oppressive circumstances which the bounty is designed to relieve. A very practical form of eugenics, indeed, is one which will give the British baby a better start in life. But how much better would be a more fundamental form that would improve industrial conditions and equalize opportunities and so make a bounty unnecessary.

One great condition that handicaps the individual in large areas of the British Isles is overpopulation. By how much will eugenics, through subsidy, aggravate that condition?

The bill proposing a fine or a jail sentence for setting a free lunch for saloon customers is a happy example of the facility with which lawmakers can create impossible crimes and abolish natural rights. Shall we send men to jail for obeying the scriptural admonition to feed the hungry?

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Twelfth Street Viaduct.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The facilities for transit within the city of St. Louis are greatly hindered by the existence of one prime evil, namely, the bisection of its eastern and western limits by the railroads. This has necessitated the construction of numerous bridges, at a tremendous expenditure. In this construction, the convenience of a considerable portion of the inhabitants of St. Louis has been sadly neglected. Residents of the South Side, embracing the beautiful Compton Heights region, and extending to the southern limits of the city, are not supplied with the same facilities for reaching the business centers as are their more fortunate brethren of the West End. The Jefferson avenue bridge is traffic-ridden, as also is the Grand avenue viaduct, whereas the Compton avenue bridge affords no feasible outlet either on the north or south, except for hauling purposes. The proposed Twelfth street viaduct, however, seems a solution of the difficulty, inasmuch as it affords, with its proposed boulevard, a connection with a street which is paved from Grand avenue to Thirteeth street, and which communicates excellently with all north and south going thoroughfares, namely, Lafayette avenue.

In building the Twelfth street bridge as contemplated and constructing a suitable roadway either along the present Twelfth or Thirteenth streets the city of St. Louis will confer on the residents of its southern precincts, advantages which they will fully appreciate, which they have long been denied, and to which as equal taxpayers they are entitled. SOUTH SIDE.

Enforce Dog-Muzzling Order.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

What can the owners of dogs in this city be thinking of to dare run such horrible risks? I say give no one three days grace, but have every police officer watch and shoot any dog not muzzled. Other places are doing this, the surest and safest way. Surely St. Louis should do as much to protect the people and punish those not living up to the law to the fullest extent and without fail shoot their dogs. I see many dogs each day, not one muzzled as yet.

A MOTHER WHO CARES FOR THE SAFETY OF ALL CHILDREN.

A Foolish Plea.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Instead of compelling all dog owners to muzzle their dogs, why permit second-hand merchants to sell clothing containing every known contagious disease? No good dog will bother anyone unless he is bothered, but any man, woman or child who will kick a defenseless dog around ought to wear ball and chain, just as the dog must wear a muzzle. A dog with hydrophobia will go along and attend to his business if he isn't molested, and to muzzle a dog at this time of the year is absurd. A dog bite now is no more injurious than scratching yourself with finger nails. A person with hydrophobia will foam at the mouth and bark like a dog. And now one question, Dr. So and So? How many cases of hydrophobia have been recorded this season? But, of course, the muzzle manufacturer has to "get by." A DOG OWNER.

Workmen's Compensation Law.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

After working for one firm nine years, I had the misfortune last summer, while at work, to hurt my hand, and it will always be crippled. I was under treatment in the hospital for five weeks and it was six weeks before I was able to go back to work. I was out about $50 for hospital surgical operation, besides my salary. I asked the president of my firm if he could allow me anything for doctor's bill and time. He said he would lay the case before the accident company. I called on the attorney representing the insurance company and he told me the company would not pay me anything as I knew the danger I was taking and it was at my own risk. I put my case in the hands of an attorney to settle for me and the insurance company offered to settle at $50. My attorney advised me to bring suit for damages, and said the insurance company and the firm I was working for would have to be sued jointly. I did not want to sue my firm and would settle for the $50.

A few days before Christmas I settled for $50 and signed the papers releasing the insurance company and firm from any other damages. Two days after, I drew my weekly salary the firm told me that my services would not be needed any longer.

If the employer and insurance company are in a combine the workman's compensation bill will be a failure unless it is framed so an employe will not be discharged. He will have to be killed or suffer permanent disability to get any damages. FIRST EXPERIENCE.

Tripper Cars on Broadway.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I live on John avenue and take the Broadway car to Washington avenue. They used to run trippers between John avenue and Gano street, but for the last two or three weeks the people that catch these cars have been buncoed. Monday morning between 7:30 and 8 o'clock four straight cars would not take any passengers. They only went as far as the barn. Then 27 out of 35 passengers took an already crowded through car. This morning five trippers only went to the barn. I, one of the 22 waiting, took the fifth and had to pay two fares. What can we do? B. T. H.

The Pedestrian's Viewpoint.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I notice in this column an automobile driver says if people would only keep out of the way of the automobiles there would not be half so many accidents. I suppose this thought must be entirely original with him, but it certainly suggests to us common folks the thought that if the automobiles were kept off the streets the result would be likewise and be much more acceptable to the great majority of people who do not own automobiles and can never hope to. Now we have to run like scared rabbits whenever we see an automobile coming. And this in spite of the fact that the streets were really made for us instead of for automobilists. We would suggest to Mr. Conrad that he get down and walk for awhile and see how he likes it when some chauffeur tries to see how near he can come to scaring him out of a year's growth. We would also like to have him try to realize how he would feel if his child were run over by an automobile driven by some boy of 16. Or to have his head bumped on the hard asphalt street when some joy rider ran into his wagon because he was foolish enough to try to use the same street as the aforesaid joy rider. Mr. Conrad's point of view needs stretching very badly. If he can't be satisfied by going eight miles an hour perhaps he would like it better to be ruled out entirely. That's what his kind will get if we have the say. COMMON PEOPLE.

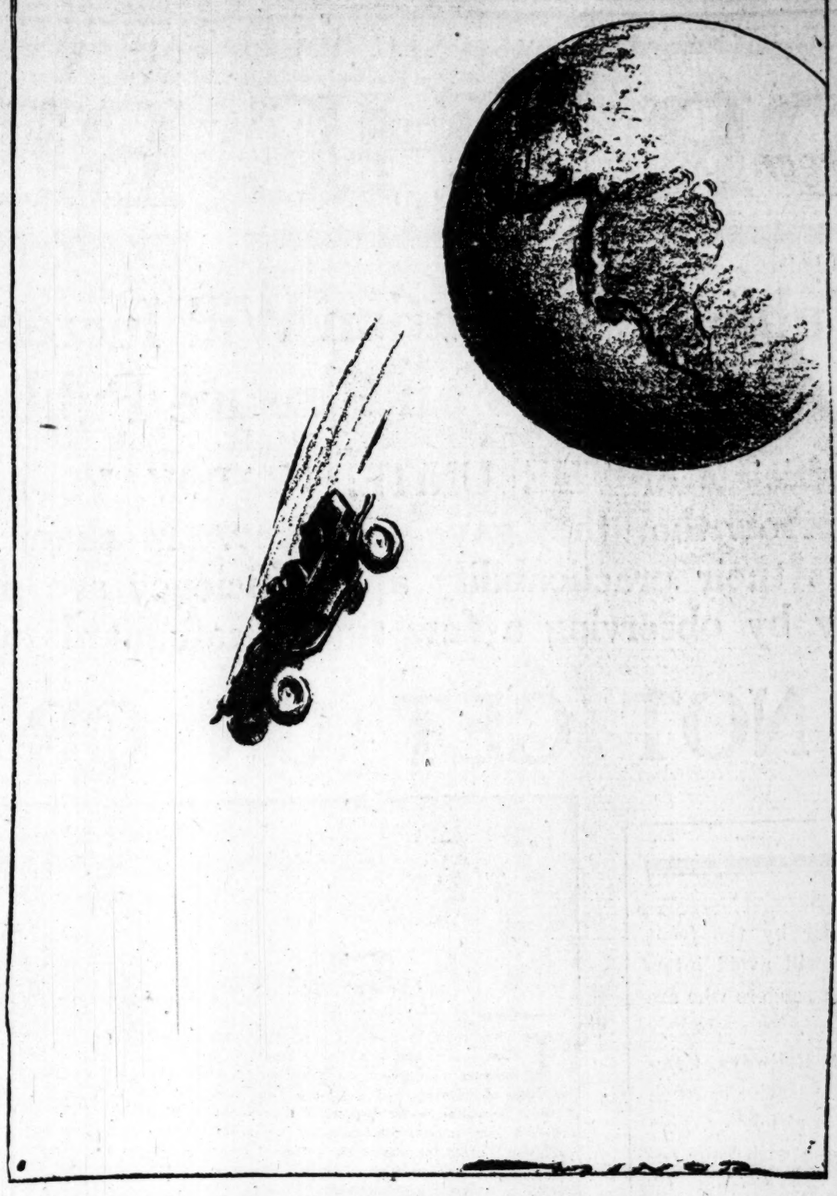

DECADENT JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.

From the Kansas City Star.

Once the justice of the peace was so popular as an officer that he made a good thing in the way of wedding fees. He is a constitutional officer and entitled to perform wedding ceremonies; but even from that field of usefulness and profit he has been crowded out.

So the Attorney-General of Kansas has discovered that the justice of the peace is not really a household necessity. He believes that he is the fifth wheel to the judicial wagon, and therefore to be regarded as excess baggage rather than as a part of the "works."

Again, let those who believe that our "oldest institutions" are a sacred heritage from the Constitutional Fathers, take notice. The Attorney-General of Kansas insists upon abolishing the office of justice of the peace, and he makes no secret of the fact that he intends to "lay impious hands upon the ark of the covenant," if the highbrows desire to put it in that light.

INTO ETERNITY.

WHEN A BLUSH IS DANGEROUS.

From the London Telegraph.

Have you got "erenthophobia?" It is not so horrible as it sounds. Erenthophobia merely means blushing, but a blushing unseasonable and unmotived. If your candid front be mantled in season and out of it with a roseate hue then there's no doubt on it you are an erenthophobist. So there the doctors have you labeled. A matter for mere jesting, this disease, you think? That is just where you are wrong. A misplaced blush may, as the worthy Dr. Chaumat teaches us, bring you dangerously near the gallows. Once upon a time there was a young advocate who lived—poor celibate sinner—in a boarding house kept by an old lady. He was the only boarder. One evening he came in to find the landlady lying on the floor with her throat cut. He called the police, who questioned him. Our young advocate stammered and blushed like a Turner sunset. The more he was questioned the more he blushed himself into the police station, and would, no doubt, have blushed himself into the dock had not the real criminal made confession in the meantime. Such are the dangers of this desperate disease, erenthophobia. The bother of it is that Dr. Chaumat prescribes no remedy. He really ought to blush for his negligence.

SAFE OCEAN TRAVEL LANES.

From the Philadelphia Record.

Moving the North Atlantic steamship "lanes" one degree south slightly increases the length of the voyage, but since April 15 of last year the traveling public has been less eager to clip 25 minutes, or even a few hours, off the length of the voyage if the abbreviation is to be obtained by jamming steamers at a high rate of speed across the course of the southward-drifting icebergs. To run the steamers 60 miles to the south of the present route will very greatly reduce the danger of encountering icebergs. Last spring the bergs were much further south than usual, and this coming spring they may not come down so far. But neither the travelers nor the steamship companies are in any mood to take chances.

Premium on Babies.

From the New York Press.

In Austria the Government has passed a law giving a bonus of $25 for every youngster born. In New South Wales the newcomers are welcome also, but instead of a bonus the Government there offers free medical service and skilled nursing attendance.

Social Justice.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Dairymen doubtless wonder what social justice there is in prosecuting an "honest farmer" for watering milk that is shipped over a steam railway or trolley line whose watering of stock goes unpunished.

Practical Man Needed.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.

The public is accustomed to approve of Miss Helen Gould's decisions, and it does not dissent from her practical verdict that the Gould family needs a real railroad man in its business.

Mr. Shaw's "Don't Laugh."

From the New York Sun.

Now that Bernard Shaw has appealed to his audiences not to laugh during the performance of his work we may expect the editor of Punch to make a similar plea to his readers.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Clark McAdams.

BURYING THE HATCHET.

Without wishing to be mean about the farewell dinner which all parties will give Mr. Cannon on Feb. 15, it is impossible to refrain from making a suggestion.

The obvious object of the Cannon dinner is to let bygones be bygones. The Democrats and Progressives are going to do it, and Mr. Cannon will leave Congress with the comfortable assurance that all is forgotten.

The suggestion is this: While it is nice of the members of Congress to send Mr. Cannon away in this fashion, the era of good feeling thus established will be confined to Congress, and will extend nowhere else. This would not be true if Mr. Cannon selected some representative copsumer, and gave him a nice farewell dinner. This would make it unanimous. All consumers would forgive and forget. They would never think hard of him again. Couldn't he do this?

Big Day for the Editor.

The editor of a Kansas paper says that he picked up a Winchester rifle recently and started up the street to deliver the weapon to its owner. The delinquent subscribers got it into their heads that he was on the war path, and everyone he met insisted on paying all they owed. One man wiped out a debt of ten years' standing. On returning to the office he found a load of hay, fifteen bushels of corn, ten bushels of potatoes, a load of wood and a barrel of turnips.—La Belle Star.

THE TRUE REWARD.

Life's greatest victory lies in work well done,
Wherein, with faithful hand, from sun to sun
The worker strives, not for reward of pelf,
But that his work be worthy of himself.

The use of work is that the worker's soul,
Finding expression, shall attain its goal;
Shall daily be more perfect as it grows
To immortality in what it does.

So, when the Master Workman comes to view
The work and render unto each his due,
Each faithful worker, his reward well won,
Shall hear the Master Workman say:
"Well done!"

A YALLAH DOG'S ADVENTURE.

De polecat he say toh mah old yallah dog:
You bettah not come too clost toh dis log;
You better stay way from dis ole hollow tree,
Foh I ain't got nuffin dot you want toh see.

Dat yallah dog bark an' he say: Ki yi!
I'll stick toh dis hole an' you'l nevah git by.
I'se gwyin' toh git you outer dat hole;
It is no use toh scrammel an' it's no use toh scole.

Dat fool yallah dog he poke in his head
Whah dat pole cat wux, an' heahs what he said:
"You smell pretty stout; you talk mighty big."
But right dah he quit, an' started toh dig.

Dat dog he lit out an Oh! how he run.
'Twuz awful toh see what dat polecat had done.
He had scented dat dog wid a feahful perfume
Dat lasted his hide toh de day ob his doom.

Dat yallah dog learned a lesson dat day,
An' you nevah can coax him toh go out ob his way.
He's a good 'possom dog; he'll tackle a rat,
But you'll nevah git him nigh a nuddah polecat. —W. H. S.

Layman: Do you think lawyers should always make the laws?
Lawyer: Certainly.
Layman: Why?
Lawyer: If lawyers didn't make them, they probably wouldn't be legal.

"How often do you go to the moving picture show?"
"As often as I can forget what they had the last time I went."

"Why did you go into the newspaper business?"
"To keep out of the newspapers."

Convenient Assets.

From the Atlanta Journal.

Probably a man never appreciates his wife so clearly as when he wants to use her as an excuse for not going to war.

"What do you think of the new heater?"
"You mean the fan blowing over the brazier?"
"Yes."
"I think the open Winter we are having is a very fortunate thing."

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

DATES.

C. S.—First Sunday of November, 1898, 6th.

SANS SOUCI.—Jay Gould Sr. was born May 27, 1836; Helen Day Miller was married to him in 1863; we have no record of her birth date.

READER.—Last July there was a report that Miss Katherine Force, sister of Mrs. Astor, would marry Henri C. Harnickell, but no date of such a wedding has appeared.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

MRS. MITCHELL.—To harden waffles to crispness, add flour to stiffen them and a little more shortening; bake longer.

MRS. L.—To test flour: If flour is white with a yellowish straw color it is good, while if it has a bluish cast, or black specks in, it is the opposite. Flour can only be tested by its adhesiveness—wet and knead a little of it between the fingers. If it works soft and sticky it is poor. If a little flour is thrown against a dry, smooth surface and it falls like powder, you may know that it is not of the best quality. If flour squeezed in the hand retains the shape given it when the hand is relaxed it is a good sign.

TRUE AND STEADY READER.—Southern recipe books do not mention sunshine cake. Mrs. Howard's Fifty Years in a Maryland Kitchen has this recipe for sponge cake: 10 eggs, half pound flour, 1 pound pulverized sugar, juice of 1 lemon and rind of 2 grated. Beat yolks and sugar perfectly light. After whites are beaten as light as possible, lay them lightly on top of the yolks and sugar, then sift the flour on top of the whites and mix all gradually through. Lastly, add the lemon juice and peel.

DON'T KNOW.—Sprinkle salt on popcorn after the corn is all popped. Candied popcorn: Into agate kettle put tablespoon of butter, 3 tablespoons water, 1 cup powdered sugar. Boil till just ready to candy, then turn into kettle 2 quarts fresh popped corn. Stir briskly with wire spoon, using care not to crush the corn, until the syrup is evenly distributed. Then remove kettle from the fire and stir till corn is cooled a little, and each separate grain is crystallized with the syrup. Take care not to burn while over fire in the syrup. While stirring it about after it is removed from fire, red sugar may be sprinkled over it. This will fasten to the corn with the syrup.

MRS. SMITH.—Graham wafers: Half cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 level teaspoon bicarbonate of soda, 2 tablespoons milk, graham flour. Beat the butter to a cream, add the eggs well beaten and gradually beat in the sugar. Dissolve the soda in tablespoon of water and add the mixture to the sugar and milk. Now work in sufficient graham flour (about 3 cups) to make a very stiff dough. Knead until the mixture will hold together. Roll in a very thin sheet, cut into squares, or into wafers 1 inch wide, 3 inches long. Lift carefully, place in a slightly greased pan and bake in a moderate oven until thoroughly done, light brown and crisp, about 8 minutes.

LAW POINTS.

A. B.—See Circuit Court Clerk in regard to your delayed case.

R. L.—Law applies only to concealed weapons, unless deadly intentions are suspected.

M. S.—For information as to Russian law, try writing Consul Victor Chickkine, Chicago, Ill.

W. J. B.—We advise paying the installment overdue. If not as represented, return the stove and bring action against the firm.

J. D.—No provision is made by statutes as to amount that is necessary as earnest money in the purchase of property or option thereon.

READER.—You may and may not be able to withdraw as surety under the bond, depending upon what kind, the circumstances and so forth.

READER.—The insurance is payable to beneficiary, and creditors of insured generally have no claim thereon; still, such may not be the rule in all cases.

ANXIOUS READER.—Self-respect should "compel" a girl to return ring after engagement is broken. We don't think a court would require the return.

U.—If note states on or before a certain date, it is at the option of the maker; the payee could not demand payment before maturity. A bill of sale need not be recorded, but recording is advisable.

READER.—You cannot compel the return of deposit if the firm has not in any way violated any contract and stands ready to fulfill its part of the agreement. You failed to state any details of the case.

X. X. X.—A partnership agreement should be entered into in writing, fixing the responsibilities, debts, duties, etc. An inventory should be taken and bill of sale demanded, duly acknowledged and also sworn to that no debts exist except such as are mentioned (if any). Or the whole may be embodied in the agreement and the affidavit as to debts taken separately.

CONSTANT.—Illinois Supreme Court has ruled that when a person violates the Illinois statute prohibiting remarriage within one year after divorce, the ceremony is not legal even if performed in another state. Neither has one party any claim on the estate of the other. The children resulting from the illegal marriages are without moral protection and have no standing in law, says the court.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LEARNING.—See City Directory.

F. H.—Examinations are held at stated times for the purpose of selecting persons for consular positions. The examinations consist of an oral and a written one, the two counting equally. The special object of the oral examination is to determine the candidate's business ability, alertness, general contemporary information and natural fitness for the service, including moral, mental and physical qualifications, character, mental and general education and good command of English. The written examinations include French, German or Spanish, or at least one modern language other than English, a test of his knowledge of the natural industrial and commercial resources of the United States, especially with reference to increasing and extending the foreign trade of the United States; political economy and the elements of international, commercial and maritime law; American history, government and institutions, political and commercial geography, arithmetic (as used in commercial statistics, tariff calculations, exchange, accounts, etc.), the modern history since 1850 of Europe, Latin America and the Far East, with particular attention to political, commercial and economic tendencies. In the written examination, composition, grammar, punctuation, spelling and writing are also given attention. As to dates and examinations or any specific information write to the State Department, Washington, D. C. An examination may also be taken for appointment as student interpreter, providing the applicant is between the ages of 19 and 26 and unmarried. The examinations are along the lines mentioned, though less difficult. A student interpreter is eligible to appointment to the office of consul. There is no uniform salary rate for foreign consuls, each post carrying its own salary.

My Disreputable Friend Mr Raegen

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS

PART I.

(Copyright, 1891, by Charles Scribner's Sons.)
(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

RAGS RAEGEN was out of his element. The water was his proper element—the water of the East River by preference. And when it came to "running the roofs," as he would have himself expressed it, he was "not in it."

On those other occasions when he had been followed by the police, he had raced them toward the river front and had dived boldly in from the wharf, leaving them staring blankly and in some alarm as to his safety. Indeed, three different men in the precinct, who did not know of young Raegen's aquatic prowess, had returned to the station house and seriously reported him to the Sergeant as lost, and regretted having driven a citizen into the river, where he had been unfortunately drowned. It was even told how, on one occasion, when hotly followed, young Raegen had dived off Wakeman's Slip, at East Thirty-third street, and had then swum back under water to the landing steps, while the policeman and a crowd of stevedores stood watching for him to reappear where he had sunk. It is further related that he had then, in a spirit of recklessness, and in the possibility of the policeman's failing to recognize him, pushed his way through the crowd from the rear and plunged in to rescue the supposedly drowned man. And that after two or three futile attempts to find his own corpse, he had climbed up on the dock and told the officer that he had touched the body sticking in the mud. And, as a result of this fiction, the river police dragged the river bed around Wakeman's Slip with grappling irons for four hours, while Rags sat on the wharf and directed their movements.

But on this present occasion the police were standing between him and the river, and so cut off his escape in that direction, and as they had seen him strike McGonegal and had seen McGonegal fall, he had to run for it and seek refuge on the roofs. What made it worse was that he was not in his own hunting grounds, but in McGonegal's, and while any tenement on Cherry street would have given him shelter, either for love of him or fear of him, these of Thirty-third street were against him and "all that Cherry street gang," while "Pike" McGonegal was their darling and their hero. And, if Rags had known it, any tenement on the block was better than Case's, into which he first turned, for Case's was empty and untenanted, save in one or two rooms, and the opportunities for dodging from one to another were in consequence very few. But he could not know this, and so he plunged into the dark hallway and sprang up the first four flights of stairs, three steps at a jump, with one arm stretched out in front of him, for it was very dark and the turns were short. On the fourth floor he fell headlong over a bucket with a broom sticking in it, and cursed whoever left it there. There was a ladder leading from the sixth floor to the roof, and he ran up this and drew it after him as he fell forward out of the wooden trap that opened on the flat tin roof like a companionway of a ship. The chimneys would have hidden him, but there was a policeman's helmet coming up from another companionway, and he saw that the Italians hanging out of the windows of the other tenements were pointing at him and showing him to the officer. So he hung by his hands and dropped back again. It was not much of a fall, but it jarred him, and the race he had already run had nearly taken his breath from him. For Rags did not live a life calculated to fit young men for sudden trials of speed.

He stumbled back down the narrow stairs, and, with a vivid recollection of the bucket he had already fallen upon, felt his way cautiously with his hands and with one foot stuck out in front of him. If he had been in his own ballywick, he would have rather enjoyed the tense excitement of the chase than otherwise, for there he was at home and knew all the cross-cuts and where to find each broken paling in the roof-fences, and all the traps in the roofs. But here he was running in a maze, and what looked like a safe passageway might throw him head [illegible] into the outstretched arms of the officers.

And while he felt his way his mind was terribly acute to the fact that as yet no door on any of the landings had been thrown open to him, either curiously or hospitably as offering a place of refuge. He did not want to be taken, but in spite of this he was quite cool, and so, when he heard quick, heavy footsteps beating up the stairs, he stopped himself suddenly by placing one hand on the side of the wall and the other on the banister and halted, panting. He could distinguish from below the high voices of women and children and excited men in the street, and as the steps came nearer he heard someone lowering the ladder he had thrown upon the roof to the sixth floor and preparing to descend. "Ah!" snarled Raegen, panting and desperate, "you'se think you have me now, sure, don't you?" It rather frightened him to find the house so silent, for, save the footsteps of the officers, descending and ascending upon him, he seemed to be the only living person in all the dark, silent building.

He did not want to fight.

He was under heavy bonds already to keep the peace, and this last had surely been in self-defense, and he felt he could prove it. What he wanted now was to get away, to get back to his own people and to lie hidden in his own cellar or garret, where they would feed and guard him until the trouble was over. And still, like the two ends of a vise, the representatives of the law were closing in upon him. He turned the knob of the door opening to the landing on which he stood, and tried to push it in, but it was locked. Then he stepped quickly to the door on the opposite side and threw his shoulder against it.

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS.

The door opened, and he stumbled forward sprawling. The room in which he had taken refuge was almost bare, and very dark; but in a little room leading from it he saw a pile of tossed-up bedding on the floor, and he dived at this as though it was water, and crawled far under it until he reached the wall beyond, squirming on his face and stomach, and flattening out his arms and legs. Then he lay motionless, holding back his breath, and listening to the beating of his heart and to the footsteps on the stairs. The footsteps stopped on the landing leading to the outer room, and he could hear the murmur of voices as the two men questioned one another. Then the door was kicked open, and there was a long silence, broken sharply by the click of a revolver.

"Maybe he's in there,' said a bass voice. The men stamped across the floor leading into the dark room, in which he lays and halted at the entrance. They did not stand there over a moment before they turned and moved away again; but Raegen, lying with blood-vessels choked, and with his hand pressed across his mouth, it seemed as if they had been contemplating and enjoying his agony for over an hour. "I was in this place not more than twelve hours ago," said one of them easily.

"I come in to take a couple out for fighting. They were yelling 'murder' and 'police,' and breaking things; but they went quiet enough. The man is a stevedore, I guess, and him and his wife used to get drunk regular and carry on up here every night or so. They got 30 days on the Island."

"Who's taking care of the rooms?" asked the bass voice. The first voice said he guessed "no one was," and added: "There ain't much to take care of, that I can see." "That's so," assented the bass voice. "Well," he went on briskly, "he's not here; but he's in the building, sure, for he put back when he seen me coming over the roof. And he didn't pass me, neither, I know that, anyway," protested the bass voice.

Then the bass voice said that he must have slipped into the flat below, and added something that Raegen could not hear distinctly, about Schaffer on the roof, and their having him safe enough, so that red-headed cop from the Eighteenth Precinct was watching on the street. They closed the door behind them and their footsteps clattered down the stairs, leaving the big house silent and apparently deserted. Young Raegen raised his head and let his breath escape with a great gasp of relief, as when he had been a long time under water, and cautiously rubbed the perspiration out of his eyes and from his forehead.

It had been a cruelly hot, close afternoon and the stifling burial under the heavy bedding, and the excitement, had left him feverishly hot and trembling. It was already growing dark outside, although he could not know that until he lifted the quilts an inch or two and peered up at the dirty window panes. He was afraid to rise, as yet, and flattened himself [illegible] with an impatient sigh, as he ga[illegible] the bedding over his head again, held back his breath to listen. There may have been a minute or more of absolute silence in which he lay there, and then his blood froze to ice in his veins, his breath stopped, and he heard, with a quick gasp of terror, the sound of something crawling toward him across the floor of the outer room.

The instinct of self-defense moved him first to leap to his feet, and to face and fight it, and then followed as quickly a foolish sense of safety in his hiding place; and he called upon his greatest strength, and, by his mere brute will alone, forced his forehead down to the bare floor and lay rigid, though his nerves jerked with unknown unreasoning fear. And still he heard the sound of this living thing coming creeping toward him until the instinctive terror that shook him overcame his will and he threw the bedclothes from him with a hoarse cry, and sprang up trembling to his feet, with his back against the wall and with his arms thrown out in front of him wildly, and with the willingness in them and the power in them to do murder.

The room was very dark, but the windows of the one beyond let in a little stream of light across the floor and this light he saw moving toward him on its hands and knees a little baby who smiled and nodded at him with a pleased look of recognition and kindly welcome.

The fear upon Raegen had been so strong and the reaction was so great that he dropped to a sitting posture on the heap of bedding and laughed long and weakly, and still with a feeling in his heart that this apparition was something strangly unreal and meancing.

But the baby seemed well pleased with his laughter, and stopped to throw back its head and smile and coo and laugh gently with him as though the joke was a very good one which they shared in common. Then it struggled solemnly to its feet and came pattering toward him on a run, with both bare arms held out, and a look of such confidence in him, and welcome in its face, that Raegen stretched out his arms and closed the baby's fingers fearfully and gently in his own.

He had never seen so beautiful a child There was dirt enough on its hands and face, and its torn dress was soiled with streaks of coal and ashes. The dust of the floor had rubbed into its bare knees, but the face was like no other face that Rags had ever seen. And then it looked at him as though it trusted him, and just as though they had known each other at some time long before, but the eyes of the baby somehow seemed to hurt him so that he had to turn his face away, and when he looked again it was with a strangely new feeling of dissatisfaction with himself and of wishing to ask pardon.

They were wonderful eyes, black and rich, and with a deep superiority of knowledge in them, a knowledge that seemed to be above the knowledge of evil; and when the baby smiled at him the eyes smiled, too, with confidence and tenderness in them that in some way frightened Rags and made him move uncomfortably. "Did you know that you'se scared me so that I was going to kill you?" whispered Rags, apologetically, as he carefully held the baby from him at arm's length. "Did you?" But the baby only smiled at this and reached out its hand and stroked Rags' cheek with its fingers. There was something so wonderfully soft and sweet in this that Rags drew the baby nearer and gave a quick, strange gasp of pleasure as it threw its arms around his neck and brought the face up close to his chin and hugged him tightly. The baby's arms were very soft and plump, and its check and tangled hair were warm and moist with perspiration, and the breath that fell on Raegen's face was sweeter than anything he had ever known. He felt wonderfully and for some reason uncomfortably happy, but the silence was oppressive.

"What's your name, little 'un?" asked Rags.

SHOULD THE WIFE BE THE BOSS?

Bible Forbids Woman to "Boss" the Home, Says Man Who Thinks Hubby Should Rule

"Let the man govern the home at all times—most men can't be endured unless you humor their every whim—The average man wants a human machine that will never tire," writes "Adele L."

By NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH.

"THERE should be a head to everything, even in partnership, a court of last report, and that, in the case of marriage, should be the man, because his intellect and knowledge of the world should be greater than those of his wife. Such a thing as two bosses is an absurdity."

So a masculine reader disposes of the problem of dominion in the home, and in a very unusual communication a married woman reaches the same conclusion, though for reasons far different from those stated in the man's letter. "Let a man rule at all times," she says. "It's the only way it is possible to endure him."

This feminine advocate of masculine authority has many ideas which most of us may regard as a little old-fashioned, but she reaches, nevertheless, a startlingly modern conclusion. A class of feminists with whom I have absolutely no sympathy maintain men as such are intrinsically uninteresting; that fatherhood is their only excuse for being. And here we have an old-fashioned wife urging other women to have children because "you can forget a lot of trouble while you are rocking a baby to sleep, and most men are cruel, selfish and not to be trusted. Raise your family well and their love and respect will repay you for all your trouble. There is always a silver lining to every cloud."

Coming to a Point From Opposite Directions.

So from opposing poles of argument a man and a woman meet on the principle that the husband shall be the lawgiver in his home, the man basing his argument on a supposed superiority of his sex, the woman urging man's negligibility.

Surely there must be some friend of the modern woman who will break a lance in defense of her claims to rulership. Since Mary Garden has said that the American woman is an autocrat in her own home there must be an autocrat or two with the desire to take her pen in hand to assert and justify her authority.

I do not feel competent to do so as I believe in the democracy of the home and have no regard for tyrants of either sex

I must admit also that I am unable to weigh properly the theological doctrines advanced by "J. S." in support of his contention that the husband shall be the head of the home. The facility with which such delicate matters adjust themselves to the accomplished fact has always excited my wondering admiration. Since suffrage for women became the law in California no prelate of the Golden Gate, so far as I am aware, has raised his voice against it, and others formerly opposed or indifferent are now loud in its praise. Only to "J. S.," who cites a chapter and verse against the equality of woman in the home and asks what women have to say about it, I must observe that women are not worrying at all on that score, because the moment equality becomes a fact the better qualified interpreters of texts will elucidate their new meanings.

Eliminating the assertion that the authority of the husband is of divine origin, what is its foundation? Naturally the man's financial headship. But if the husband is the head of the home because it is his special function to maintain it while the wife cares for it, then the relation of husband and wife is not one of partnership at all, but of employer and employed. Whenever there is a partnership, an association of two or more persons with equal right and responsibilities, there is a division of duty and of authority.

Here are the views of the man and the woman who agree that the husband shall rule the home. What do you think about it?

Children the Secret of a Woman's Love.

Dear Madame—Let a man rule at all times. Most men of today can't be endured unless you humor their every whim. If you keep your hands under their feet all the time, lose all your reason, backbone and self-respect you will do. But if you try to assert any rights, voice any opinions, you are all wrong.

The average man of today wants a human machine like an Edison invention, one that will work on and never tire, never get out of order, out of practice. One who can change her manners to order by putting in a new battery.

There are hundreds of married women today who to keep peace in the family lose all pride, backbone and self-respect just to keep men in a good humor. Such men—and they are many—gain nothing by their brutal ways. No woman respects them; we fear them and hate them. The average married woman, no matter how badly her husband may treat her, if she has children—and I have—loves that man, and for her children's sake she stands anything from him. No woman asks to be boss after she works hard all day with her home and children. She is so lame at night that it takes all her energy to work up a smile and keep up with the average man. They want you to be able to remodel last year's clothes for yourself and children and be up on opera, politics and the Balkan question at the same time. We don't mind working hard for a man and doing our level best, but we want a little kindness thrown in. I say to wives, have children. They are a comfort. I have five, and sincerely hope I shall have more. You can forget a lot of trouble while you are rocking a baby to sleep. Only, all women, look out for yourselves. Don't worry and fret over men. They are not worth it. Most are cruel, selfish and not to be trusted. Raise your family well and their love and respect will repay you for all your troubles. There is always a silver lining in every cloud. Let a man bluster around, and some day when his health is gone and he has met his Waterloo in deceitful friends, he will be glad to come and bow to the little woman he ruled and bossed.

ADELE L.

Why a Man Thinks a Husband Should Be Boss.

Dear Madame—Kaiser Wilhelm, who believes that he is divinely commissioned to help the Deity in regulating the affairs of the universe, is reported to have recommended women to cultivate the three K's—"die kuche, die kirche und die kinder," or Englished, the kitchen, the kirk and the kids, which are certainly more important as "first principles" than those of Herbert Spencer. All women can chatter, but few can converse, and if a man is forunate enough to have a wife who is a hausfrau and a Hypatia at the same time, he is to be congratulated in possessing an enviable treasure, for usually beauty and brains have no bond of union except that they both begin with the letter B. But to come back to our muttons, as they say in France. If a woman really believes in her religion, how can she desire to be the boss, since her bible tells her, in Genesis 3, 13, that it was not man's choice but God's that he should "rule" over woman? Yet how does this explain the refusal of many women to marry unless the word "obey" is eliminated from the marriage ceremony?

All this talk of the American henpecked husband has a basis of fact. Where there is so much smoke there must be some fire, and most every one has met the prototypes of Mrs. Nagg and Mrs. Jarr in real life. Dropping the religious aspect of the question and basing the matter on ordinary common sense, it is pertinent to ask those ladies who are inclined to boss, "Why do you think that you are competent to rule your husband when you have never shown the slightest ability to rule your own servants, which most any man of ordinary inteiligence is able to do successfully in his own business?" Of course that does not excuse the man who allows himself to be bullied. He deserves all that is coming to him, including the contempt of his fellow men, and including, of course, also the contempt of the female bully herself. There must be a head to everything, even in partnership—a court of last resort—and that in the case of marriage should be the man, because his intellect and knowledge of the world should be greater than those of the wife. Such a thing as two bosses is an absurdity. The Spartans tried a double line of Kings and there never was one of them that amounted to a row of pins as a real King. A man should rule his business, and the wife should rule the home, and neither should interfere with the other unless things go wrong, when, of course, there should be a mutual discussion of the best way out, and, as a last resort only, the decision must be left to the man. If the woman refuses to abide she is the wrong kind of wife, and if the man is unable to decide he is the wrong kind of a husband, and the sooner the two separate the better. This, as I understand it, is the only meaning of "rule" as applied to a husband. Have the ladies something better to offer? J. S.

THE ORIENTAL.

By Eugene Gary.

FAR from his home by the deep-green Nile,
He wends his wares thro' the city,
Humming the while, in a curious style,
Some unpronounceable ditty.
He has grasses from distant Palestine
That flourished by Jordan's waters,
And strings of beads that were wont to shine
On the necks of Araby's daughters.

The tasseled fez on his grizzly crown
Is a relic of Oriental splendor,
And his skirt, divided, hangs loosely down,
Not even held by a suspender.

On his swarthy cheek is a long, deep scar,
Destroying his olive complexion.
Was it made by some Bedouin scimitar
As a token of pure affection?

And I asked: "Are you Padishah, Sheik or Bey?"
"Arrah, sure its nonsinse yer talkin',
I'm known to me fri'nds as Mike O'Shea,
This grass grew over Long Island way,
An' thim bades—faix they're med in Weehawken."

CHATS WITH GREAT MEN OF THE CIVIL WAR

By MRS. GEN. PICKETT.

Mrs. Pickett is the widow of Gen. George E. Pickett, leader of the immortal Gettysburg charge. She was in the very heart of the Civil War. Heroes who are now merely deathless names were her close personal friends. Mrs Pickett has written for the Post-Dispatch one of the most remarkable series of articles ever printed, comprising her memories of the Civil War's great men. Lincoln, Lee, Stonewall Jackson and a host of other notables are vividly depicted in these articles and from a wholly new and intimate viewpoint.

Mrs. Pickett was effectionately termed "The Bride of the Confederacy." She has known nine Presidents, and has won fame as one of the most brilliant and interesting writers of the scenes in which her soldier-husband bore so gallant a part.

NO. 3.—STONEWALL JACKSON.

THE career of Stonewall Jackson was the greatest marvel of the war. A major of artillery at 23, promoted twice in one day in Mexico (once for standing by his guns after all his men had been killed or driven away), it would have needed no prophet then to foretell for him a distinguished martial future. Soon after the Mexican war ill-health compelled him to resign from active service and take the quiet position of instructor in a military institute. And it was there I first saw him, when paying a visit to my uncle, Col. J. J. Phillips, who was professor of mathematics there.

"What is she doing here?" he asked coldly in response to my uncle's introduction.

I replied:

"My uncle couldn't get off, Major, to come to see us. So we came to see him, as he had to remain at his post."

"It seems to me, Miss, that it would be equally necessary that you should remain at your post, not yet being either out of your primer or your pinafore."

I wanted to tell him that I was reading Caesar, but he continued:

"Girls come here ostensibly to see their brothers and cousins, but in reality to dance and catch beaux and interfere generally with the discipline and studies of the whole corps. And if I had entire control I should put a stop to it."

As I remember now, this, to me, unusual welcome did not impress me with the idea of latent greatness, and I think it would have required a bold soothsayer then to foretell fame for Major T. J. Jackson of the Virginia Military Institute.

Unlike many puritanical people who apply their rigid rules chiefly to the conduct of other people, Stonewall Jackson might look with tolerance upon the frivolities of his fellowmen; but he yielded nothing to his own tastes except when supported by principle.

When my soldier lay wounded in Richmond after the battle of Gaines' Mill, Jackson came to see him. I chanced to be there, and when the great General was presented I recalled to him our first meeting. He chuckled, and said:

"My mind is still unchanged, young Miss, in regard to the interruption of discipline."

While Gen. Jackson and my soldier were discussing the battle mint juleps were brought in. Jackson declined, saying:

"I never touch strong drink. I like it too well to fool with it, and no man has strength enough to touch that stuff with impunity."

Said the maid, springing to the defense of her juleps:

"'Scuse me, Marser, but dese yer drams ain' got no imputerty in 'em. Nor, suh; dey's meked out er we-all's bes' old London-Dock brandy en from out'n dem bottles kivered ober wid cobwebs."

"May I offer you my lemonade, General?" I asked.

"No, Miss; I take my lemons straight," he replied, pulling a lemon from his pocket.

A pet dog belonging to my soldier's sister came into the room with her sad, going over to Jackson, laid its head on his knee and looked up into his face. Jackson put back its ears and patted its head. By way of thanking him I said timidly:

"I see you love dogs."

"Does a man ever love dogs, young Miss?" he asked so seriously that I was startled. But I was bound I would not surrender, even to Stonewall Jackson, and replied:

"Dogs love you, at any rate, Gen. Jackson."

"Yes, Miss," he said slowly. "You are right; dogs do love me."

I wondered how dogs could love him when he did not love dogs, and I am still wondering.

The extreme care in dress of my own soldier and other officers with whom I had been thrown was in strong contrast with the "magnificent plainness" for which he was admired. Only once was he ever seen in a brand-new uniform and gold-laced cap. It was the gift of that prince of cavaliers, J. E. B. Stuart, and was worn at the battle of Fredericksburg. There was fear expressed along the line that "Old Jack was so afraid of his new clothes that he wouldn't be able to get down to business." It is needless to say that the apprehension was dissipated before the day was over.

Stonewall appreciated soldierly qualities in an enemy as highly as in a friend. At the battle of Antietam one of his men was about to fire upon a young soldier, Jackson said:

"Stop, lower your gun. I have watched that boy off and on all day. He is too brave to be killed."

Thus did Stonewall Jackson save the life of William McKinley, who was to become twice President of the United States.

Someone said that the Lord had made up His mind that the South should not win and to prevent it He had to remove Stonewall Jackson.

Those who most strongly opposed the cause for which he gave his life the news of the lost battle of Chancellorsville was made more sad by the message: "Jackson is dead."

A foreign paper spoke of him as "one who took to a soldier's grave the love of the whole world and the name of Stonewall Jackson."

Vain Man.

"I OVERHEARD Mrs. Jones paying you a compliment today, dear," said Mr. Spudder.

"What did she say?"

"She said you have the handsomest husband in town."

Poor Man.

"SO you have begun your retrenchment by doing your own cooking?"

"Yes, you see now my husband doesn't eat half as much as he formerly did."

LUTHER M'CARTY HAS $100,000 IN MATCHES OFFERED

—BILLY McCARNEY

March 17 Will See Heavyweight Champion's First Return to Ring.

WILL BE OF AGE THEN

Bombardier Wells Probable Opponent for Big Battle on July 4.

Jack Johnson to Fight Al Palzer in Paris on Night of Grand Prix

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.

TOM O'ROURKE, manager of Al Palzer, yesterday announced the receipt of the following telegram from Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion of the world:

Terms satisfactory. We will make all arrangements when I see you in regard to pictures and transportation. Wire Lippe O K. Thanks.
JACK JOHNSON.

The telegram closes a deal for a fight between O'Rourke's protege, Al Palzer, and Johnson, to take place in Paris, France, June 25, the night of the Grand Prix race.

The terms of the match provide that Johnson shall receive $30,000 for appearance or 60 per cent of the gate receipts.

Owing to confusing reports regarding matches made for Luther McCarty, the new white heavyweight champion fighter, the Post-Dispatch today wired William McCarney, manager of McCarty for an outline of the plans made for the young giant's future. Following is his reply:

By William McCarney.

JOPLIN, Mo., Jan. 18.

Luther McCarty, world's heavyweight champion, will fight Bombardier Wells or any other white heavyweight if sufficient inducement in a financial manner is made for his services. Just now he is engaged in theatrical work in order to give his hands, which were badly used in the Palzer fight, a rest.

I also figure that in his present work he will have an opportunity of allowing the fistic fans of the country an opportunity of becoming better acquainted with the new champion.

I have now received offers of fights with heavyweights of the country between now and July 4 which, if accepted by us, will net Luther $100,000. I believe that, while we like the stage work, we will soon give it up; for Luther loves the boxing game and is again impatient to be back in harness. However, he will not forsake the footlights until his hands are strong enough to enable him to do his most effective work.

Will Be of Age March 17.

From here we shall go North, filling our theatrical engagements until March 17, when we will be in Columbus, O. On that date McCarty will be 21 years old and he insists celebrating the occasion in the circle. We have selected no man for his opponent, in fact, we have never selected a man for Luther to box, except a man who was regarded by the public as a better man than he.

Tom McCarey is now in communication with Wells relative to a championship bout on Independence day, which I believe is the most desirable of the many offers we have received. It should be a great battle, for Wells is by far the most clever of the big men whom Luther has not yet met. He outboxed Palzer in their fight in Madison Square until the Iowan, with a chance blow, sent him to the mat for the count.

Wells will take no such chances with McCarty and the battle between the two fastest and cleverest heavyweights in the world should be a grand affair.

Polo Dates Named.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The dates of June 10 and 14, for the international polo matches on Long Island, are formally accepted by the English challengers in a letter received from the Hurlingham Club. The club expressed the hope that a third game would be necessary.

WRAY'S COLUMN

MALCONTENTS NO HELP.

WHETHER Mrs. Britton, owner of the Cards, has the signed contract of William Armour to act as scout for the club can mean little toward bringing that astute baseball man back to the fold from which so much baseball brains is daily slipping. Even though the technical right of the situation gives the owner of the Cardinals a grip on the former scout, circumstances have arisen that would make his services practically worthless to the Cardinal club.

To hold Armour against his will would be repeating the dose the club forced on itself the year it compelled John McGraw to come West and act as manager of the team. That act ruined one of the greatest aggregations of individuals ever assembled.

A discontented player or baseball man is far worse than none. Not only is he himself dissatisfied and unable to do his full worth, but he spreads the grouch germ through an entire club.

IGNORANCE CAN BE REMEDIED.

It's sad to think of losing an experienced man like Armour from a team that so badly lacks baseball direction. But it's better to have a conscientious and willing ignoramus than an inimical genius.

* * *

THE TIDE WILL TURN.

IT'S almost time the tide turned in favor of Mrs. Britton. Despite all the bad moves made by her advisers, she has proven herself a courageous scrapper who sticks to her club despite circumstances that would discourage most women into disposing of the property at a sacrifice.

Nor is it any exaggeration to say that there are some persons now looking with covetous eyes on this pretty, though deteriorated plum, awaiting the time when the Cleveland lady's courage and stamina will have been sapped by tribulation, ready to rush in and grab at a low price.

There are perhaps some who have connived to this end and it is hoped that Mrs. Britton will stick it out to foil these. The property is valuable; the town is a live wire on baseball and it's only a question of getting two pilots, one for the ball team and one for the business office, to bring the good ship through the sea of troubles.

* * *

A GREAT TRIO LOST.

THE antagonism which resulted in the breaking up of that wonderful combination, Armour, Kinsell and Bresnahan, is deeply to be regretted. There is not the slightest doubt entertained by those who follow baseball affairs closely that these three would have given the Cardinals a winner within two or three years—or that they would have supplied a team with a fighting pennant chance.

But with these gone and an unknown directorate coming into power, the immediate future of the club is such that plenty of backbone will be needed by the Cleveland owner to keep at the task.

That it's worth it, the cases of Murphy, Hedges and John McGraw, among others, show. All these men have weathered storms that depreciated their club properties tremendously.

Mrs. Britton can do the same—if the League does not use any levers to pry her out of her holdings.

* * *

DID YOU SAY CHICKEN?

WE have with us again Jack Johnson, who is counting his chickens before they are hatched. Johnson has agreed to fight Palzer in Paris, June 25, but he forgot to find out whether his Uncle Sam would give him permission.

Johnson can already see himself spending that $30,000 guarantee, but, to a man up a tree, it looks as though the eggs will have to be laid before that French broiler can be dissected.

* * *

A PROSPECTIVE GUEST.

Johnson is still facing charges that, if proven, will mean he'll be the guest of his well-meaning relative, Uncle Sam, for some months. And that lapse, on top of the years Johnson has spent in trying to outdo Father Time as a constitution buster, spells oblivion for the colored title holder.

Jack is 35 years of age next March. And it will be seen that it only takes a very few months on top of this to cross the physical dead line. In fact a good guess is that Johnson is already over that imaginary boundary which separates the champion from the backslider.

* * *

FINE!—FOR McCARTY.

THE Palzer fight will serve one useful purpose—it may give Luther McCarty a real right to the heavyweight title.

Should the black meet the blonde Iowan, and the latter outlast the negro—about the only way he can possibly win—then McCarty's claim to the world's championship would be clear, he having stopped Palzer in the battle at Vernon, Cal., recently.

Joe Jeanette Unable to Stop Jeff Clarke in 10-Round Bout at Joplin

DISPATCHES from Joplin, Mo., indicate that Jimmy Bronson's colored light-heavyweight, Jeff Clarke, had to do a little tin-canning to save his bacon, Friday night, when he fought Joe Jeanette, the dark-fronted heavyweight championship aspirant, 10 rounds at the Southwest Athletic Club.

According to report, Jeff held Jeanette fairly well for five rounds, but the rest of the milling consisted largely of Clarke's endeavor to get into places where Jeanette's fists were not. Jeanette forced the fighting throughout and was easily best, reports say. The last four rounds consisted chiefly of an effort on Clarke's part to avoid a knockout.

Clarke had previously fought Jeanette twice, in Newark, N. J., and in Pittsburg, having the advantage on points both times.

Luther McCarty refereed the bout.

The bout between Packey McFarland and Franklin Whitney, scheduled Friday night at Omaha, was prevented by the police.

The South Broadway Athletic Club will hold trial boxing bouts, next Tuesday, to determine what material is suitable for the show to be held at the club Feb. 15. All ambitious amateurs are invited to participate.

The inter-city boxing card being arranged by the Future City Athletic Club for next Thursday night will include four bouts between St. Louis and Chicago scrappers. Kingdon Belmont and young Gus Ruhlin will meet in the heavyweight division; Paddy Carroll will oppose a good lightweight from Chicago in Jimmy Carroll. Jimmy Foley of St. Louis will have his work cut out against Paddy Keller, while Frankie Hennessy, the clever little St. Louis scrapper, will take on Nat Kalb in the 116-pound class.

Harry Forbes handles the Chicago team.

Maginley Seeks Bout.

One of the cleanest looking scrappers that has drifted into the city in some time is Steve Maginley of Rock Island, a middleweight who wants a go with Art Magirl or some other man of similar heft. Maginley is 23 years old and has a record that goes back to 1908.

Maginley has fought among other contests, a 10-round no-decision bout with Glen Coakley, at Indianapolis, has beaten Freddie Hicks, a promising middleweight candidate, in 8 rounds at Memphis, has put out Walter Kilrain in a punch at Quincy, has fought three 10-round, no decision goes with Jack Herrick, and has knocked out several less important battlers. His best weight is about 154 pounds.

Japanese Billiard Player Must Make 1187 Points to George Slosson's 400

Unless Ko Ji Yamada, the Japanese balkline billiard expert, makes wonderful showing in tonight's final play in the 2400-point balk-line match here against George Slosson, he will be hopelessly beaten. That he win the match necessitates his making 1187 points while his veteran opponent tallies but 400.

Slosson again gained on the Jap in Friday night's play, scoring 400 to 114 for the Oriental, making the total tally up to Saturday's play 2000 to 1213.

Slosson was in great form Friday, averaging 28 4-14, while the Jap could do but a trifle under 9. Slosson's high run of 112 was almost equal to the total score of his opponent.

Frank Jones of Philadelphia defeated Walter Lauben and Stanley Kandul of Chicago in Friday night's Intercity Cue League tournament game at Chicago, score 50 to 22. The victory gives Brooklyn the lead in the tournament and puts Chicago back in second place. The winner went out in his sixty-second inning.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE WANTS RIGHT TO RENT GROUNDS

Bill Authorizing New Baseball Body to Lease Lots to Be Introduced in House.

At the instance of Dwight Davis, Park Commissioner, a bill is being prepared for introduction into the House of Delegates authorizing the heads of the Municipal Amateur Baseball Association of St. Louis to lease private grounds for the use of the teams of the organization as baseball diamonds.

If the bill passes and is approved by the Mayor, an appropriation will be asked at once, so that the plans for conducting the city baseball championship, under civic auspices, can be completed as early as possible.

The Municipal Baseball Association was temporarily organized at a meeting of amateur baseball team managers held Jan. 10 in the Park Commissioner's offices. Representatives of 40 teams were present and the ground-work of the association was outlined.

A committee was appointed to draw up a constitution and this will be passed on at a hearing scheduled for next Monday night, at the Park Commissioner's office. The members of the committee who have charge of drafting the constitution are: Rudowe Abeken, Playgrounds Commissioner, chairman; Phil Kavanaugh, Trolley League; Charles Kahl, Manufacturers' League; Henry Kulage, independent teams, and Ed Stanler of the Stationary League.

Eight Leagues Planned.

It was also decided at the preliminary meeting that the municipal association consist of eight leagues grouped according to the business activities of the players composing the teams. These will be divided into two classes, A and B. Class A will consist of clubs whose members are over 18 years of age. Class B will include teams whose players are under 18 years. The winners in the various leagues, in both classes, will play in the finals and the winners of the titles in Class A and B may fight it out for the city title, if they see fit.

The constitution will provide that each league be a member of the Muncipal Association. It will handle its own affairs among the clubs composing it; but the association reserves the right to interfere in any instance, for the good of the organization. All leagues will operate under common rules laid down by the association.

Permanent organization of the association will be effected soon and then Mr. Davis' bill will be presented to the House of Delegates.

Many Diamonds Planned.

It is intended to rent vacant lots and install temporary diamonds for the accommodation of the association's teams The public park diamonds of the city are not adequate to supply the demand that will follow the opening of the city championship race.

Independent teams, which are not classified like the Stationery, Plumbers, Athletic Clubs and other leagues, will not be frozen out of the city organization for want of affiliation. All such teams desiring to enter the association will be classified on application to Mr. Rodowe Abeken, of the Park Commissioner's office. Henry Kulage is looking after the interests of the Independents on the Rules Committee.

Many problems are being brought up to the Rules Committee, even to the question of drawing the color line. This rock failed to wreck the association; for the committee sidestepped it by suggesting a separate colored championship team race.

The principal trouble in drafting rules that will be observed by all teams is to devise a means of preventing clubs covering up players and of stopping the shifting of men from team to team during the season.

Players have the right, under the proposed rules, to demand their release if kept on the bench for three consecutive games without due cause.

"PETE" COMPTON SENDS BACK SIGNED CONTRACT

Pete Compton's signed contract was received at the local American League club's office, late Friday afternoon. Pete is a good bit of furniture to have standing around. He is an improved player. Pete's home is in San Marcos, Tex. He came from the Battle Creek (Mich.) team in 1911 and played the outfield for the Browns in 1912. He is 21 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs 170 pounds. He bats and throws left-handed and his hitting for the past year shows him to be one of the best men on the club. In 100 games Pete batted .280, stole 11 bases, made 75 hits and otherwise demeaned himself well. His fielding for the season was .925.

Only Practical Baseball Head Can Save Cards

—"BILL" ARMOUR.

Had Bill Armour, the Toledo baseball man, been made president of the Cardinal club he never would have accepted the offer from Mrs. Havenor of Milwaukee. We get this straight from Bill's shoulder.

However, Armour never asked for the job, but it is a known fact that Bresnahan wanted Armour at the head of Mrs. Britton's plant. In fact, that was one big reason why Armour was retained as scout.

Armour is eminently fitted for the position. He has owned class AA league clubs, managed big league teams and scouted through all the little leagues of the U. S. A. But he never received a call to the presidential chair, so he went where he could get the job he wanted.

Armour Sorry for Mrs. B.

"Things are not breaking very well for the Cardinals and I feel sorry for Mrs. Britton," Armour stated Friday evening at the Planters. "However, her success will date from the time she installs a practical man at the head of her club. Until then, she may expect to run into tough luck."

Armour says Manager Huggins should get great service from Pitchers Perritt, Griner and Redding next season. Bill discovered the trio in the Cotton States League and he's cock sure they will deliver. He says:

"This fellow Griner is a sure comer. So is Perritt. Redding may need seasoning, but he'll eventually win his spurs. I'm glad that I can look back and say I found a few players of their stripe for the Cardinals and my worst wish is that they each prove a Mathewson next season."

McKINLEY AND YEATMAN IN VITAL GAME TONIGHT

The basket ball game between teams representing McKinley and Yeatman high schools which is booked as the second half of a double-header at Louisiana Hall Saturday evening, probably will decide the championship in the high school league. A victory for McKinley will clinch the flag for the South Siders. Yeatman, by winning, can prolong the struggle.

Central and Soldan, hopelessly out of the title race, will furnish the curtain-raiser.

C. B. C. Plays James Millikin.

The C. B. C. five will buck the representative of the James Milliken University at Louisiana Hall, Saturday afternoon. The Collegians have not shown much form as yet, but hope to hit their stride in the struggle with the Illinois quint. Play starts at 2:15.

Indoor Ball Game Postponed.

Owing to the recent death of Russell Davie, assistant secretary of the Cardinals, the indoor baseball game which was scheduled for Sunday between the Concordia Turners and members of the Cardinal team, Koney, Byrne and Company decided to postpone the contest until Jan. 26.

Morris Rath, the speedy recruit second baseman of the White Sox, who did such good work last season, has sent in his signed contract for 1913.

"Bresnahan Day" Planned When Roger Comes as Cub Fans Start Subscription

Rooters Plan Demonstration for First Game Here Between Chicago and Cardinals—Mrs. Britton Has Had More Bad "Breaks" Than One Owner Deserves, History Shows.

By W. J. O'Connor.

"BRESNAHAN DAY," with music, flowers, fans, a diamond or two and other eclat, will be celebrated at Robison Field when the Chicago Cubs call for their first 1913 collision with the Cardinals.

This announcement comes hot from "Count" Henry Hoffmann, the world's champion rooter, who single-handed laid the foundation on which Roger Bresnahan's popularity in St. Louis was built.

Hoffmann is an indefatigable worker when there's a benefit for ball players on the books. He glories in buying precious stones and presenting them to the downtrodden athlete who must slave in harness for a mere $10,000 a year (six months' work).

Caught in the act of accepting a subscription for the Bresnahan fund Saturday, Hoffman exploded:

"When I'm for a guy I'm for him strong. I'm a friend of Roger's, so he's a friend of mine. And I'm going to give him the biggest send-off he ever received on the diamond. When the Cubs come here for their first game next April we'll give Roger one of the nicest presents he ever got. Something big—probably a diamond.

Never Again for Hoffmann.

"We'll have music and the Royal Roger Rooters. There'll be speeches and screeches and a riotous reception for the greatest living catcher. I intend to see the Cards play once next season. That'll be the day Roger returns for the first time with the Cubs. After I give him his present and show him how he stands with the St. Louis fans. I intend to pass out of Robison Field and never again enter.

"I'm for the players strong, but against the system. I like Koney, Hauser, Evans, Magee, Huggins and all the boys. They're a fine lot of men. But just wait and see what we'll do for Bresnahan."

Then Henry put somebody's name down for "five" and went to work.

Cards' Owner in Bad Luck.

WHEN Russell F. Davie met death in the strange automobile accident Friday morning, another sad chapter was written in the history of Mrs. Britton's reign as owner of the Cardinal ball club. A Jinx has trailed the club since the death of M. Stanford Robison and one only has to look back over a brief span of 14 months to realize what a trying lot has befallen Mrs. Britton.

First came the ousting of F. N. Abercrombie as administrator. This was a tedious task, entailing a long fight in the courts, where many club secrets were given to the public, and many dollars paid to legal talent.

Then came the ousting of Edward Steininger as president and administrator. A cash bonus, said to have been $11,000, was paid Mr. Steininger.

Then, when the Cardinals were rushing madly towards the top of the National League pennant scramble in 1911, a midnight express of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad plunged off a bridge at Bridgeport, Conn., and put a crimp in the team's confidence. The club went to pieces after the wreck, losing the fall series to the Browns, besides losing a first-division berth.

Later the decapitation of Roger Bresnahan caused a storm of protest. The fans took Roger's dismissal to heart, but Mrs. Britton went through with her plans, disposing of an asset that cost the club $65,000 (including his $9000 bonus at the windup) for the inside of a doughnut in return.

Still later, Dick Kinsella, scout extraordinary, quit in sympathy with Bresnahan. Dick resigned after being commissioned to go to Milwaukee and sell several recruits.

Next Scout Bill Armour, one of the ablest men in baseball, resigned unceremoniously to take charge of the Milwaukee club. Huggins relied on Armour to dig up players who eventually would make the Cards a pennant factor.

And last came the untimely death of Mr. Davie, who only a week ago was made secretary of the club, succeeding Herman Seekamp, who was reduced to a bookkeeper's job. Seekamp's salary was sliced and he was re-commissioned to take care of the "inside" office. Mr. Davie's appointment as secretary was to have been announced in February.

Despite these discouraging "breaks," Mrs. Britton steadfastly refuses to sell her club.

Tigers Romp Over Ames Five.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 18.—Superior team work and speed of the Missouri Tiger quintet won the last of the series of games from the Ames five, 25 to 13, Friday. Ames scored only three goals in the last half, when the Missouri regulars went in for the first time.

Substitutes took the lead early in the first period, which ended Missouri 9, Ames 8.

Bernet, the St. Louis boy at center, against Hefty Pfund, won rounds of applause by his good work.

Windy City Mat Man Catches Al Wasem Napping

"Young Gotch" of Chicago, who meets Al Wasem of this city at the Columbian Athletic Club tomorrow afternoon in the first important wrestling match of the season in St. Louis, is expected in St. Louis tonight. In a letter from the Windy City grappler he stated that he was now one pound under the required weight, 138 pounds, and was in the best possible condition and confident of defeating Wasem in the coming match.

Judging from Chicago reports, Gotch has apparently "slipped one over" on Wasem in the weight. On making arrangements for the match the Chicago boy stated that it was impossible for him to make the required 135 pounds for a match at the lightweight limit. Rather than lose a chance to meet Gotch, the St. Louis boy agreed to 138 pounds at 1 o'clock, about two hours before the match. This will give Gotch a few pounds the advantage, as Wasem will go on weighting 135 pounds. According to Chicago press reports, Gotch is claiming he can make this weight and has issued a defy to Johnny Billiter to wrestle for the lightweight championship. Billiter in turn has stated that Gotch must defeat Kid Burns and Charles Wirth, who, with Wasem, are his legitimate rivals, before he will tackle him. Gotch is so confident of defeating Wasem tomorrow that he has practically made a match with Burns to take place in Chicago within the next month.

Gotch comes to town with an excellent reputation, he having wrestled in over a hundred matches. Billiter, the champion, is the only boy of his weight who has given him a black mark.

The preliminary bout will be between Eddie Hammer of the Columbian Athletic Club and Harry Uhlemeyer of the South Broadway Athletic Club. This bout will be started promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

HUDSONS WOULD PLAY LEOS FOR $1000 SIDE BET

Eastern Soccer Team, Beaten Here, Wants Return Game for Big Purse.

Smarting under the defeat suffered here at the hands of the St. Leos, the West Hudson soccer team of Harrison, N. J., has hurled a "defi" into local soccer circles. Manager Tom Adams of the West Hudsons has written to Secretary Will Dooling of the local league stating that he has a backer in the East who is willing to wager $1000 that the Hudsons can beat the Leos, if they clash again. Adams suggests that another game be booked, either in St. Louis or in the East.

The challenge will be brought to the notice of Bill Klostermann of the St. Leos Saturday and he will present it to his players. When the local champions will accept is a question, although they have many friends who undoubtedly will come to their rescue.

Both Teams Have Alibis.

The St. Leos have played two games with the West Hudsons, losing in the East, 3—2, and winning their game here, Dec. 29, by a score of 4—2. However, the Easterners played the St. Leos here after having performed in two tough games against the Innisfails and Business Men's A. C. They claimed, at the time, that the Leos were wise in delaying their encounter until they (the Hudsons) were crippled. In reply to this, Manager Klostermann says that when his team met the Hudsons in the East, last March, it was crippled after a strenuous battle with the Tacony eleven of Philadelphia. So it's horse and horse.

Charley Barrett Signs to Scout for Brownies for Sixth Straight Year

In renewing, a few days ago, his contract to scout for the Browns, this being the sixth successive document he has signed, Charley Barrett probably has set a record. Few gumshoe men remain that long in the service of any one club. However, Barrett has made a name for himself and Col. Hedges is happy to announce that Charley will be "with us again in 1913."

Barrett has found some very serviceable players. He is responsible for Earl Hamilton, Mack Allison, Gus Williams, Dee Walsh and others too numerous to mention, being on Hedges' payroll. And we all know that Hamilton, Allison et al are pretty pert performers.

Wilie Quits Baseball.

Dennie Wilie, the Cardinal utility outfielder of last season, has quit baseball for good. Dennie is a full-grown real estate dealer in Waco, Tex., and the kopecks are coming so easily that he announces his permanent retirement. He's a graduate of Bailey U. of Austin, Tex., and in his day was regarded as the best quarterback in the Lone Star State.

POST-DISPATCH'S DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

WALL STREET STOCK LIST IS ABOUT STEADY

Steel Shares Show Slight Gains; Trade Reports Conservative.

BANK RETURN IS FAIR

Surplus Reserves Gain $5,900,000 While Loans Expand Over $32,000,000.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"The stock market of today might be described as entirely negligible. The amount of business actually done was trifling and prices scarcely moved. On the foreign stock exchanges, a similar apathy seemed to prevail, and indeed, it is difficult to see just what should have broken the deadlock of the European investment market.

"As with ourselves, everything that happens is at once declared to have been 'discounted' beforehand, leaving the eye of the speculative market fixed on something else—hopefully or apprehensively, according to the market's mood.

The Bank Report.

"Some very remarkable figures were presented in today's weekly bank return. On the actual week-end statement, cash holdings increased $15,000,000 and loans expanded $32,900,000. The latter process again reflected the shifting of loans back to the New York banks, from the inland or foreign banks, which carried them during the money market pressure of last autumn.

"On the statement by daily averages, the clearing house itself pointed out that the increase in loans and deposits broke all weekly records.

"The resultant increase of $5,990,000 in the actual surplus reserve brought that item to the respectable figure of $21,000,000—which, however, is still considerably below the showing of this week in January, during other recent years."

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S WALL STREET TRANSACTIONS

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.

Prices changes were small at the opening of the market today, with a tendency upwards. The only fluctuation of more than a fraction was in Louisville, which rose a point.

The market closed steady.

Raiding tactics were less effective today, and although the early advance was interrupted by a sharp drive against the favorite issues, the list soon exhibited resiliency and improved smartly. Trading was on a small scale and the general movement was comparatively narrow. Covering operations supplied the chief prop of the market. Buying for the long account was limited owing to discrimination of purchasers against certain classes of stocks. Several specialties, including some which have been liquidated heavily of late made substantial advances. Bonds were irregular.

Opening prices were not long maintained and the bears, finding that the demand was satisfied, offered stocks rather freely for a while, sending the usual leaders off sharply. Purchases were resumed around low levels and the market rallied strongly again, with Amalgamated going a point above yesterday's closing.

Coal Trade Less Active.

The Black Diamond, in its issue of Saturday, said:

"Within the last three weeks there has been a complete reversal of the national coal situation. Three weeks ago there was a shortage of coal and the tail end of a shortage of cars which seemed to make it almost impossible, at that time, for even the bituminous operators to meet the demands upon them for coal; it was considered hopeless for the anthracite operators to expect to satisfy their customers.

"This week there is an accumulation of bituminous coal in about half of the markets that it will take another 30 days of cold weather to work off. The best that can be said of any market is that it is merely steady. As for anthracite, the situation is so changed that it seems supply and demand will, without the intervention of very cold weather, be about at a balance at the end of the year."

Metal Markets.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The metal markets were dull and nominal as usual on Saturday. Lake copper, $16.87½@17.12½; electrolytic, $16.62½@16.75; casting, $16.50. Iron quiet.

COTTON MARKET LOWER; JANUARY WEAK POINT

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 3 to 7 points, and sold off to a net loss of about 17 points on Jan. and of 8 to 10 on other old crop months before the end of the first hour.

Liverpool barely responded to yesterday's local advance, which was evidently considered disappointing, in view of the bullish construction of the week-end figures, and reports that additional cotton was heading in this direction for contract delivery, probably had a bearing on the decline in January.

General business was not active, and covering of shorts appeared to be the chief support, although there was some buying by houses with European connections.

The cotton market closed easy at a net decline of 7@16 points.

American Stocks Are Steady on the London Market.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The supply of money was restricted today. Discount rates were firm. The stock market was quiet and uncertain, pending the Porte's reply to the note of the powers, and prices fluctuated narrowly. Canadian Pacific improved on reports of increased earnings and shipping and oil shares were fairly steady. Rio Tintos declined, despite better reports from the American copper market.

American securities opened steady and later advanced under the lead of Canadian Pacific. The closing was steady, with values from ⅛ to 1⅜ above parity.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Jan. 18.—Comparative receipts table:

	Today	Week Ago.	Year Ago.
Cattle	400	400	350
Hogs	6,000	4,800	8,500
Sheep	200	1,400	....
Horses and mules	100	200	150

NATIVE CATTLE—The showing from native territory embraced a few odd bunches of cattle, and values ruled on an even level with yesterday. During the past week the bears have ruled the market and values on good to choice beef are a good bit lower than a week ago. The medium grade kinds also suffered a decline, but there was less hammering on the "cheap grade" of beef.

QUARANTINE CATTLE—Several cars of canner cows and yearlings made up the week-end offering from quarantine territory, and the showing was soon picked up at good steady prices. During the past week quarantine steers suffered a break in sympathy with native cattle, but canners and yearlings made an advance and are now selling at the high point of the season's trade.

HOGS—With a good supply on sale the market was active and prices for the desirable grades were a shade better with fair offerings steady and pigs 15@25c lower again. The top was $7.60 for a load of butcher hogs while the bulk went at $7.35@7.50. Packers were slow bidders and paid $7@7.35 for fair to good mixed hogs, while the shippers and butchers paid $7.45 and up for the good offerings weighing 180 lbs. and over. Best grade of lights weighing less than 165 lbs. brought $7.20@7.50, best quality pigs under 125 lbs. sold at $6.65@6.90, fair pigs $6@6.50, and the rough heavy throwout packers $6.85@7.10. The close was quiet but there was a good clearance.

SHEEP—Only a few head arrived and there was no material change to the market. Best fat lambs are worth $8.65@9.15, medium grades $7.75@8.50, yearlings $7.75@8.25, mutton sheep $5.15@5.35, stockers $3.35@4, and bucks $3.50@4.

HORSES—The auctions have handled a very heavy run of horses this week with few holdovers on hand. Eastern horses ruled strong with southern offerings selling at steady values. The market was quiet today as all of the receipts were consigned for sale next week.

MULES—The mule trade was fairly active today and most of the commission supplies still in first hands found an outlet. Mules with quality are finding a ready outlet but medium and trashy grades are dull.

It seemed harder to buy wheat than to sell it Saturday, and after an early dip prices showed a firm tone. The demand was based mostly on sentiment, backed by the belief that futures are in a bull movement of considerable importance, with strong cash demands and future crop uncertainties as its sustaining influences. Under such conditions, especially after prices have declined 25c on a big crop, the upswing invariably goes further than expected by the trade. Professionals, for this reason, are strongly favoring the buying side on declines rather than the selling side on rallies.

Corn futures were quiet with prices fractionally lower. Important market news was lacking, but there is not much pressure on values considering the recent strong advance. Oats were fractionally lower.

Broomhall's cable said: "The wheat market opened under pressure and prices were ¼d lower, influenced by the weaker American cables yesterday. Later there was pronounced dullness, with prices holding at the opening level and the undertone steadier. Plate offers are larger and as a result there was less inquiry for both Canadian and American offers, with the forecast for larger world's shipments. At the close the market was dull and ¼d lower than yesterday. Corn opened ¼d lower, and later the American grade declined a further ¼d on the weaker American cables and larger American offers. The continued bullish weather news from Argentine offset the American weakness in Plate and that grade was well supported. Final quotations were ¼d lower."

Buenos Aires wheat closed yesterday with a firm undertone and prices unchanged; holders continue firm, with large export bids. Corn closed ⅛c to ⅝c lower, with small realizing on the forecast of unsettled weather.

Larger mills in Minneapolis said flour business was fair over night. The fair flour business in January, after one of the largest fall flour demands in history, certainly indicates that flour is being consumed on a very large scale.

Minneapolis wired: "Cash market firmer. Good general milling demand. No. 1 Northern blue stem, May price to ½c under. Few choice cars ¼c to ½c over May. Velvet chaff, 1c to 1½c under May. Find a broader flour demand reported."

Broomhall cabled: "Our Argentine agent said this morning that the weather is dry and hot and much anxiety is being felt regarding the corn prospects, as drouth in many districts is excessive. A heavy rain is required shortly or otherwise serious damage will result."

Minneapolis wheat cars were 267; last week, 286; last year, 250. Duluth, 181, against 126 and 12; Winnipeg, 399, against 406 and 336. Minneapolis receipts decreased 30,000 bu for one day.

Clearances: Wheat, 538,000 bu; flour, 19,000 bbls; corn, 533,000 bu; oats, 499,000 bu; wheat and flour, 624,000 bu.

Chicago wheat cars were 76, corn 502, oats 167. Estimated Monday: Wheat 61, corn 854, oats 192.

Cash wheat closed irregular, with soft steady and hard about ½c lower. Millers bought on a hand-to-mouth basis.

Cash corn ½c easier; demand only fair.

Cash oats ½c lower on white, but wanted. Receipts large, but 30 cars going through; mixed oats easier.

ADOPTION

FOR ADOPTION—Pretty baby boy, of fine parentage. 2660 Washington. (c7)

Lost and Found

Solid agate, 10c line; minimum 20c.

IF YOU LOSE ANYTHING, and will advertise it here, you will surely recover it if found by an honest person. A 3-time ad seldom fails. Remarkable recoveries are brought about every day through this column. Your druggist our agent.

IF YOU FIND ANYTHING bring it to the Post-Dispatch Lost and Found Bureau, 210-12 North Broadway. Get a claim check. Advertise the article. Reclaim it if the owner does not.

THE LAW—People who find lost articles are interested in knowing that the State law (Sections 8263 and 8273, R. S., 1909) is strict in requiring them to seek the owners through advertisement and otherwise, and that a failure to do so, if same can be proven, involves a severe penalty.

FORGERY NETS $1,600,000

Hungarian Capitalist and Railroad Builder Arrested.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 18.—Ignaz Palloh, one of the most prominent railroad and bridge contractors of Hungary, was arrested here today on the charge of embezzling $1,600,000 and with issuing a quantity of forged shares.

Palloh is director of several railroad companies and financial institutions both in Hungary and other countries. One London company is said to have been victimized to the extent of $300,000.

$900,000 in U. S. Claims Approved.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The Senate passed the omnibus claims bill, embodying many claims against the Government, which has been approved by the Court of Claims. It carries approximately $900,000 and now goes again to the House. The French spoliation claims were not included.

Did You Dine Out New Year's Eve?

A page of photographs, taken by flashlight and showing scenes in the fashionable cafes downtown as the old year died, is a feature of the Picture Section. Perhaps you were there. Look and see.

Woman Spends Million in Month

She suddenly found herself with $1,500,000—and $12,000,000 more in sight. Then she got busy and bought. Her diamonds footed up $250,000, and the gay clothes she acquired cut deeply into the million that she spent in about 30 days. How she spent it is told in this narrative from the news.

Vases Helen of Troy May Have Seen

A Southwestern University has come into possession of three vases which stood in the palace of King Priam, in that ancient Troy of which Homer sang. These are the only genuine Trojan vases in America, and are the subject of a beautiful Color Page and interesting description.

Cancer Discoveries in St. Louis

Dr. Leo Loeb finds two patients near recovery after injection of a copper solution into their veins. This new treatment is described with professional accuracy and caution. No "cancer cure" ever has been discovered. Will this prove to be the specific so long sought?

Living Now in Eighteenth Century

This is a story of the recent life of Horace Kephart, formerly librarian of the St. Louis Mercantile Library, who has discovered 3,000,000 of Americans living under eighteenth century conditions. He describes how they live. He has lived amongst them for years.

When the Next President Was Young

Less than two months from now Woodrow Wilson will become President. You know how he looks now. Some old family photographs have been found which show him as a boy and as a young man. He is surrounded by many members of his father's family. These pictures are reproduced, with an account of Wilson's boyhood.

A Good Sleeper.

THE lawyers got a tartar when, in a recent trial in a Southern city, they summoned to the stand an aged darkey who had been an eye witness of a fight that had occurred between a number of persons.

"Tell us what you know about this fight," said counsel, when old Moses had been placed upon the stand.

"Fight?" asked Moses, apparently greatly surprised. "What fight?"

"You know very well what fight is meant," said counsel. "Tell us about it."

"I don't know nothin' about no fight," insisted the witness. "What was it?"

"See here, Moses!" exclaimed the lawyer; "no trifling! The fight day before yesterday. You know all about it. Tell us—"

"Oh, de fight day befo' yisterday," said Moses. "Well! suh, you see, I'se slept since de day befo' yisterday, and I never kin ricollect anything after I'se been asleep."

And that was all they could get from him.—The Green Bag.

:: MORE "USELESS INVENTIONS" WIN SOME REAL PRIZE MONEY ::

INVENTORS of useless things have kept the Comic Page man uselessly busy this week in an effort to make certain that no infringement of patents is perpetrated. Looking over the designs printed today, one can feel certain that no law suits are imminent yet.

Mechanical genius is neglecting to hit some of the high places, however, Who will be the first to invent something that will make a hungry man hungrier or a thirsty man thirstier? There's uselessness for you. Another thing, very needless, would be a sort of dividing rod or compass to enable the small boy of the household to locate the jam of jar his mother deludes herself she has hidden away.

Well—look them over.

AWARD OF PRIZES.

Abe Radman, 2105 Kansas av., East St. Louis	$5.00
M. Taylor, 4642 Cook av.	1.00
A. M. Sweyd, 4975 Fountain av.	1.00
George Hosenfelt, 3873 South Broadway	1.00
Harry Freedman, 1382 Blackstone av.	1.00
Nellie Coughlan	1.00
F. J. Maier, 408 Elm st.	1.00
A. T. Cook	1.00

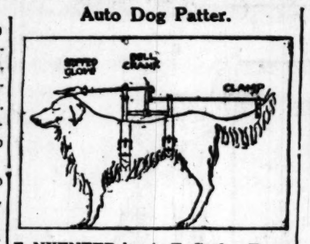

Foot Warmer.

ELECTRIC WARMER

PARTICULARLY designed for patrons of owl cars who just miss the three 'steen and have to wait 45 minutes for the next one. Unfortunately the genius who invented this device neglected to give his name and address. But the way of the inventor has been proverbially hard, and he not only misses today the public acclaim that should be his but the chance of a prize of one iron man, also.

Auto Dog Patter.

INVENTED by A. T. Cook. Every wag of Fido's tail guaranteed to give him an affectionate tap. Come in and get the money.

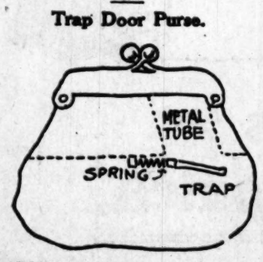

Collar Button Locater.

IF collar button is dropped while collar is being put on or taken off, the magnet of the chiffonier top will draw the collar button to it; or if it drops the handles of the drawers will draw it and hold it.

4642 Cook av. M. TAYLOR,

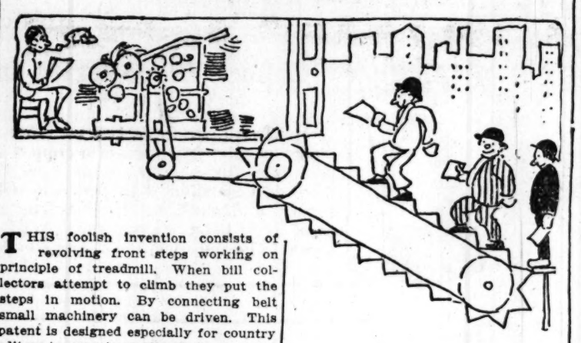

Trap Door Purse.

ABOVE is a diagram of a purse, which in the writer's estimation, is the most useless invention. This purse has a metal tube, running half way to the bottom of purse. At end of tube is a trap which opens only downward allowing money to drop down. Trap opens only one way and that is downward, the lower half of purse is made of bomb-proof steel.

F. J. MAIER,
408 Elm st.

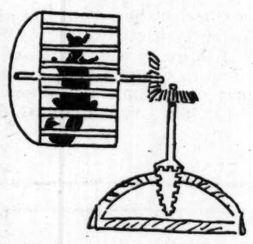

POWER FROM BILL COLLECTORS.

THIS foolish invention consists of revolving front steps working on principle of treadmill. When bill collectors attempt to climb they put the steps in motion. By connecting belt small machinery can be driven. This patent is designed especially for country editors to operate small printing presses.

Collinsville, Ill. FLOYD LONG.

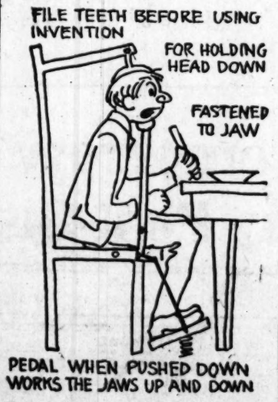

Lumber Stretcher.

THIS simple device is not intended to reduce the high cost of living, but to expand the board that the "other fellow" cut too short. To operate? Just make a noise like a nut.

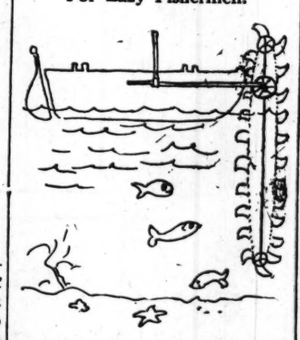

GEORGE H. HOSENFELT,
3673 South Broadway.

Steak Masticator.

INVENTED by Harry Freedman, 1382 Blackstone av. The foot pedal, vigorously pumped, will work the human jaw up and down with force enough to masticate the toughest steak.

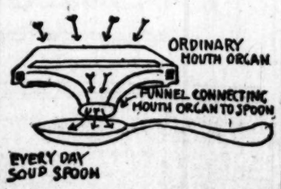

For Lazy Fishermen.

THE endless chain of buckets is operated by a lever in the boat. The buckets are made of sieve wire allowing the water to pass through. The fish see the bait in the buckets, enter and are entrapped. The fisherman removes the fish from the buckets to the boats. This invention saves the enormous cost of tackle and can also be operated by a motor, saving man labor. Patent applied for.

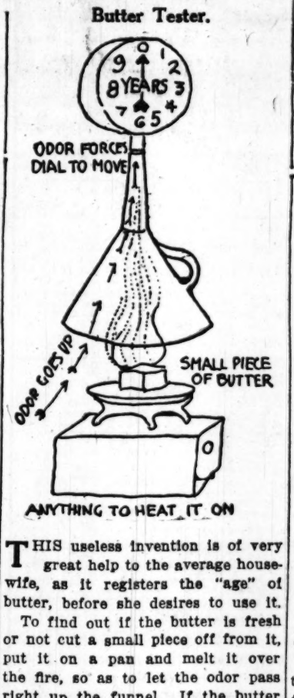

Inventor hides his identity, unfortunately.

Musical Soup Spoon.

INVENTED by A. M. Sweyd, 4975 Fountain av., St. Louis. It is suggested that a suitable tune for the mouth organ would be "Drink to me only with Thine Eyes."

Butter Tester.

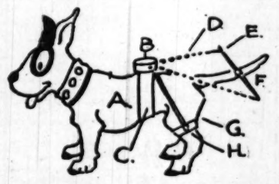

THIS useless invention is of very great help to the average housewife, as it registers the "age" of butter, before she desires to use it.

To find out if the butter is fresh or not cut a small piece off from it, put it on a pan and melt it over the fire, so as to let the odor pass right up the funnel. If the butter is fresh there will not be a powerful odor and the dial will not move. But if the butter is old it has such a powerful odor that it will force the dial to move, registering its age in years.

ABE RADMAN,
2105 Kansas av., East St. Louis.

Anti-Dog Bites.

"A DOG that wags its tail will not bite."—Proverb.

A. Any dog (except a pug).*

B. Clock-work mechanism.

C. Strap to hold contrivance in place.

D. Dog-chain to pull rod from side to side.

E. Steel rods on either side of tail.

F. Steel ring around tail.

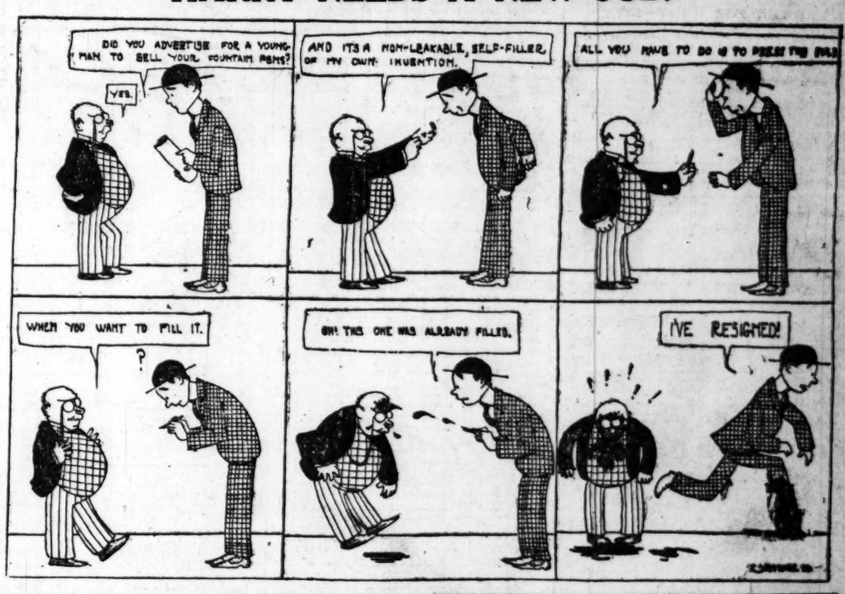

G. Strap around haunch.

H. Patent stem-winder, works by a button. When the dog sits down the button presses a spring which automatically winds the "works."

*If it's pug, shoot it.

NELLIE COUGHLAN,

HARRY NEEDS A NEW JOB.

Living in Florida.

WILL IRVIN lived in California for many years and is enthusiastic about everything relating to California. One day he was holding forth upon the superiority of California over Florida as a winter resort.

"Florida," he said, "is too relaxing. This is due to the fetid air of the swamps.

"There's a story about a young man who was being examined for admission to the Florida bar. The examination ran thus:

"'Young man, are you malaria-proof?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'Can you ride?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'Do you own a horse?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'Is he a good swamp-swimmer?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'Then, young man, I welcome you to the practice of law in this district.'"

Little Brother Speaks.

FLORENCE, who was an ardent admirer of her own vocal qualities, had been selected to sing a solo at a church entertainment.

The following morning at the breakfast table she remarked to her younger brother:

"Well, I never thought my voice would fill that large hall.

"Neither did I," answered her brother unfeelingly. "I thought it would empty it."—Lippincott's.

SCABBING A JOB.

A GANG of Italians was employed on a railroad contract removing earth with wheelbarrows. While proceeding with his work one of the men noticed that the wheel of his barrow was squeaking terribly and to put a stop to the noise he turned the barrow over and was in the act of greasing it, when the boss noticed him and shouted out:

"Halloa, Pietro! Halloa, sir! What the dickens are you doing?"

"I am greasing my barrow, sir."

"Who told you to do that?"

"No one, sir. I took it upon myself."

"Well, don't let me catch you at it again. Every man here must stick to his own job. What do you know about machinery?"—London Tit-Bits.
